U. N. UNITS CARRY FIGHT TO REDS

House Wants China Branded An Aggressor

Passes Resolution Urging U. N. Action

WASHINGTON, Jan 19(AP) — An aroused House of Representatives shouted approval today of a resolution urging the United Nations to brand Red China an aggressor in Korea.

In a terse 28 words, the resolution declared:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the House of Representatives that the United Nations should immediately act and declare the Chinese Communist authorities an aggressor in Korea."

Only a few "no" votes were audible as the members approved the policy statement by a voice vote.

In the brief pre-vote debate, however, some Republicans contended the resolution was tantamount to a declaration of war on the Chinese Communists.

Martin Disagrees

However, Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, said he did not construe it that way. It is merely an expression of sentiment among the House members. But it came at a critical time when representatives of the non-Communist world were jockeying nervously at the United Nations headquarters at Lake Success, N. Y., over a resolution to brand the Chinese Reds as aggressors.

Sponsors of the proposed U. N. resolution decided to delay its introduction until tomorrow to permit the delegates to consult with their governments.

House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts introduced the resolution in the House, and was joined in the action by Republican Leader Martin.

Martin Has One Regret

McCormack said its overwhelming approval by the House would show the rest of the world that the United States is truly united.

Martin said his only regret was that the action wasn't taken several weeks ago, to head off what he called the recent "appeasement" vote in the U. N. on a Korean cease-fire proposal.

Although McCormack presented the resolution as an expression of bi-partisan foreign policy, Rep. Shafer (R-Mich) declared that the Republicans supporting the move "don't speak for the Republican party" and forced a quorum roll call to establish that a majority of the membership was on hand. The tally showed 268 present, with 218 required for a quorum.

O'Donnell Flies To Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell returned to Washington tonight at the invitation of the Air Force high command to "discuss the circumstances" of an interview in which he advocated using the atomic bomb on Red China.

O'Donnell landed at Bolling Air Force base at 9:15 p. m. E.S.T. after a flight from the west coast.

He told reporters that he came at the invitation of Gen. Nathan Twining, vice chief of air staff, "to discuss operations in Korea and also the incidents of my press conference at March Field."

The announcement that O'Donnell had been "invited" to Washington prompted speculation that the Air Force might take disciplinary action.

Move Follows Behind-Scenes "Freeze" Row

Truman Appoints Johnston To Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — President Truman today fired Alan Valentine as the nation's economic stabilization chief after a behind-the-scenes row in which Valentine opposed an immediate price-wage freeze.

Mr. Truman immediately named Eric Johnston, former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, as his successor. Johnston is now head of the Motion Picture Association of America.

The president's shakeup of his economic high command was interpreted on Capitol Hill and elsewhere as heralding a speedup in the anti-inflation fight and the imposition of sweeping price-wage controls.

Valentine himself said the President believed drastic action should be taken immediately.

But the exact time of such action was still uncertain. Charles E. Wilson, defense mobilization chief, merely told newsmen that Johnston's appointment would tend to hasten a decision on the long-debated question of controls.

Some high-level officials have predicted that a nationwide "freeze" on prices and wages will be announced before Feb. 1, and this seemed to be borne out in Valentine's letter of resignation.

Valentine wrote Mr. Truman that only yesterday he gave Wilson a detailed plan for "overall mandatory price and wage stabilization effective about Feb. 1."

Valentine said he wanted about two more weeks to muster an adequate staff before clamping down controls, and he told the President:

"I am sorry it (the plan) is not acceptable."

Valentine took over the stabilization job just three months ago. His resignation—submitted at Mr. Truman's request — capped a rising storm of criticism from members of Congress who complained that Valentine's cautious attitude in combatting inflation was jeopardizing the nation's economy. Valentine felt, for one thing, that more time was necessary to establish enforcement machinery.

In his letter to Mr. Truman, Valentine insisted there had been "no disagreement" with his associates "as to the necessity of overall price and wage controls," but he said:

"There has been honest difference of opinion as to the precise timing and method of their introduction."

Cook Admits He Slew 6, Including Mosser Family

Shot Hostages When They Cried For Help

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—The FBI said today William E. (Badman) Cook, Jr., admitted killing six people including the five members of the Carl Mosser family.

Cook killed the Mossers—mother, father and three children — in their automobile, the FBI said, after he had kidnaped them and forced them to accompany him through Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas and Missouri.

The 23-year-old Missouri ex-convict was quoted by Ewell C. Richardson, FBI agent in charge here, as admitting he also shot and killed Robert Dewey, Seattle salesman, in California.

He denied, Richardson said, that he had killed any other person.

Boasted Of Killing Eight

Officers previously had said he boasted during his flight that he had killed eight people.

The FBI said Cook told them he had held the Mossers as hostages and had agreed to leaving them bound and gagged to insure his escape. But he later became alarmed and shot them, his statement declared.

The tragic story of the Mosser family, while recounted without emotional touches by the FBI, indicated they underwent a terrible ordeal before death about 2 a. m., Jan. 2, near Cook's hometown of Joplin, Mo. They had been his terrified prisoners more than three days.

Near Joplin, the Mossers made their last outcry for help. At the sight of a police car, Mrs. Thelma Mosser, 29, became hysterical.

Dumped Bodies In Mine Shaft

The children, Ronald Dean, seven, Gary Carl, five, and Pamela Sue, three, started to scream. Cook said he then bound the mother and children — leaving Mosser, 33, at the wheel of the car. The police car passed again and Mrs. Mosser again became hysterical. The FBI said he then shot the whole family in the automobile.

He then drove into Joplin, and dumped the bodies into an abandoned mine shaft not far from his home. Their bodies were found there Monday, while Cook was being brought here from his place of capture in Mexico.

Baltimore's Air Raid Siren Splits Seams

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP) — Baltimore has been looking for an air raid siren loud enough to warn all its citizens.

Today it apparently found it.

But the racket was too much for the siren. It split its seams.

Paul L. Holland, city civilian defense director, said the steam horn will have to be rebuilt — of sterner stuff.

Ingenito Guilty; Given Life Term

WOODBURY, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP)—Ernest Ingenito, charged with the slaying of five of his wife's relatives, tonight was found guilty of first degree murder with a recommendation of mercy.

The jury of seven women and five men brought in its verdict at 9:27 p. m., after deliberating nearly five hours.

The recommendations for mercy, under New Jersey law, carries a sentence of life imprisonment. The state had asked for death. The defense called for the 26-year-old appliance salesman to be punished but argued it should be no worse than second degree murder.

Ingenito was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor by Gloucester County Judge John B. Wick.

Although charged with slaying five, he was tried only for the killing of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Pearl Mazzoli.

Plan To Condemn China Is Delayed By Consultations

Arab-Asian Nations Favor New Appeal

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 19 (AP)—U. N. action on Red China bogged down today in a welter of behind-the-scenes conferences on the next moves.

Sponsors of a plan to brand the Communist Chinese as aggressors delayed presenting a formal resolution to the U. N. Political Committee to give some delegations more time to consult their governments on details of the proposal.

A U. S. spokesman reported that the American delegation found "quite solid" support for the denunciatory resolution in conferences with British commonwealth countries and France. They were unable, however, to draft a proposal for presentation to the committee today, as was expected, he said.

Arab-Asian Bloc Favors Appeal

Ten Middle Eastern and Asian countries met for two hours and were reported to have agreed on proposing a new appeal to Red China, based on a cease-fire in Korea in exchange for a seven-power conference. This parley would not be held in China, as demanded by the Peiping regime, but in a place to be picked by the United Nations. Under the reported plan, the Chinese demand for a U. N. seat would be decided at the conference, and not beforehand as the Peiping government asked.

Lebanon, Iran Absent

Lebanon and Iran were absent from today's conference, giving rise to speculation that harmony was not complete in the Asian-Middle East camp, although there was no official explanation for their absence.

Some of the sponsors were reported to have little hope for its chances of acceptance by the Red Chinese, but wanted to make the appeal anyway for the record before lining up behind the U. S. demand for the aggressor tag.

Yugoslavia Ends State Of War With Austria

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Jan. 19 (AP) — Premier Marshal Tito's government today ended its state of war with Austria. A decree by the Presidium of the national parliament, acting on a government motion, made it official.

This step was in line with Yugoslavia's efforts to improve relations with her non-cominform neighbors and strengthen the country's strategic position for the critical months ahead. The government announced it is preparing to end the state of war with West Germany also.

Linda Files For Divorce

Gen. Collins Declares Army Will Have Equivalent Of 24 Combat Divisions By July 1

But Says Goal May Have To Be Boosted In Testimony Supporting Military Measure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today that Army strength by July 1 will be equivalent to 24 combat divisions compared with "the 12 or 14 previously mentioned."

The mid-year total will include 18 actual divisions together with many combat units not organized as divisions, Collins said. He did not indicate the Army's present combat power.

The Army Chief of Staff agreed with Adm. Forrest P. Sherman that the nation's current goal of 3,462,205 persons in the armed services may have to be boosted.

Support UMT Measure

Collins and Sherman, together with Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg of the Air Force, all members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified separately before the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee. They supported the administration's bill to draft 18-year-olds, extend the draft induction period to 27 months, and establish universal training.

Collins said he had called for a study of the problem of getting more combat strength out of Army manpower. He added:

"We will be able to get one combat division and possibly two divisions without upping strength."

An Army division contains some 18,000 men. It has been estimated that an average of 20,000 to 40,000 persons are required to support it in administrative, supply and other capacities.

Many Antiaircraft Units

The buildup of combat strength by July will include 18 divisions and 18 regimental combat teams with supporting units, together with numerous independent tank battalions, field artillery battalions and similar combat units, the General said.

"We will have a great number of antiaircraft units that are actually combat units," he went on.

Sherman, chief of naval operations, made no forecast of what the new military manpower goal might be as he gave his "personal opinion" that the target may have to be raised unless the world situation improves.

Fumes Spread Panic In Plant

DADE CITY, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP) — Fumes from a chlorine-base disinfectant threw 600 women into panic in one part of the big Pasco Packing Company here today and sent 175 of them to a hospital for treatment.

Dr. W. H. Walters and Dr. Wardlow Jones said all almost certainly would recover and only about a dozen would have to remain in the hospital.

"Dropping like flies," was a favored expression used by the women in describing how they passed out when the fumes from the disinfectant burst upon them in the sectionizing room at the plant.

The little 31 bed Jackson Memorial Hospital was crammed with ambulance-loads of women. They were lying in the halls, on porches, anywhere they could find a spot. Women kept coming five hours after the accident.

A. L. Hemingway, plant foreman, said the accident happened like this in the sectionizing department where grapefruit is cut into sections for putting into cans:

An unidentified workman dipped an old grapefruit can into a two-foot high keg of commercial disinfectant powder which is 70 per cent chlorine.

Apparently there was still some juice in the can and the liquid set off a chemical reaction. The fumes sifted into the ventilating system and the blowers took them all over the big room.

FCC Orders Probe Of Long Distance Telephone Rates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today ordered an inquiry into interstate and foreign long distance telephone service. The idea is to see whether charges to the public in those fields can be reduced.

The commission said the investigation, covering the Bell System operated by American Telephone and Telegraph Co., was prompted by recent reports of increased earnings by A. T. & T.

The parent company and its 22 affiliates in the U. S. were directed to file a statement on the matter with the FCC before March 23.

Initial hearings were ordered to begin here April 16.

U. S. Military Chiefs Think U.N.Can Hold

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Top Army and Air Force chiefs just back from a flying trip to Korea were reported by a senator today to have expressed conviction that U. N. forces can hold on there.

The two military leaders, Gens. J. Lawton Collins of the Army and Hoyt Vandenberg of the Air Force met with a Senate subcommittee for an hour-long report on what they found.

Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee later told reporters the generals had given senators "a brief but complete account of the Korean situation."

Another senator who sat in the hush-hush discussion but would not permit use of his name told a reporter both generals said the U. N. forces can hold on. This senator said there was no talk about a complete withdrawal or evacuation.

Truman Links Stalin With All Other Dictators

Predicts Free World Will Win Struggle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — President Truman tonight bluntly linked Russian Premier Stalin with all dictators who sought "enslavement of the common people" and predicted the free world will win the struggle against "the materialist forces" arrayed against them.

Mr. Truman said "there isn't any difference" between Hitler, Mussolini, Charles the First of England, Louis 14th and other dictators and the Russian leader.

"They are all just alike," Mr. Truman told a "business mobilization dinner" of the Society of Business Magazine Editors.

"Alexander the First of Russia was just as much a dictator as any other that ever existed. They believed in the enslavement of the common people."

"There is no difference between dictators, if you study your history. There has not been any difference in any police state that ever existed in the history of the world. They are all alike. They are all for the enslavement of the individual for the benefit of the state."

Mr. Truman dropped in on the dinner to help honor his old friend Paul Wooton, representative of the Chilton Publications and Washington correspondent for the New Orleans Times Picayune.

While Mr. Truman has repeatedly denounced Soviet Russia and Communist imperialism, tonight's comment was one of the rare occasions in which he has taken Stalin personally to task in public.

Defense Dept. Revises College Draft Rule

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Defense Department today knocked out a draft rule which had caused many college students to quit school in mid-term.

The new order gives the student who gets a draft notice the right to volunteer for the armed service of his choice. As is the practice now, he won't be called to duty until the end of the school year he has started.

Under the old plan, the student getting a draft call automatically was destined for the army.

As a result, the Defense Department said, numbers of them dropped out of school to volunteer and get their choice.

The new order permits them to wait until near the end of the college year before signifying their choice.

14-Year-Old Korea Veteran Heads Back To Schoolroom

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 19 (AP) — Fourteen-year-old James D. Byrd is headed back to a sixth-grade schoolroom—via Korea and as an ex-soldier.

But when he goes back, it will be much against his wishes. He wants to stay in the Army, where he'd dreamed of being since he was eight.

James, recovering from frostbitten fingers and toes at Percy Jones Army Hospital here, tried twice to enlist before he was able to convince an "eager-beaver" recruiting sergeant at Columbus, O., last June 9 he was 18.

An alert blond, James is five feet, nine inches tall and weighs 150 pounds.

Maj. Chester H. Davis, Percy Jones executive officer, says as soon as James recovers he will be given an honorable discharge from the Army because of his age.

James looks gloomily to that day, saying: "I'll have to go back to school, I guess, but I don't like it."

He ran away from his sixth-grade school room near Beckley, W. Va., to enlist. He tried first at Marion, Va., and then at London, Ky., but couldn't convince recruiters he was 18. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil R. Davis, now of Youngstown, O.

Allied Forces Reoccupy Key City Of Wonju

1,000 Korean Reds Slain Near Yongwol

TOKYO, Saturday, Jan. 20 (AP)—United Nations forces stabbed deep inside Red lines on three frozen sectors of the Korean front today in the face of an expected third all-out Communist offensive.

Three sizable Allied patrols, led by tanks, reoccupied Wonju on the central front Friday without opposition. The battered key rail and highway center had been abandoned by the U. S. Second Division Tuesday.

About 10,000 Allied troops jumped off across the snowbound east-central front Friday near Yongwol, 30 miles southeast of Wonju, and, with airpower to help, killed an estimated 1,000 North Korean Reds.

On the western front, where a roving band of tank-supported doughboys had been harassing Red lines all week, brief skirmishes were reported near Osan, 28 miles southeast of Seoul.

Small, sharp patrol fights flared at many points along the Korean no-man's-land.

Allies Are Ready

A U. N. division staff officer said the Reds will strike "when they are damn good and ready."

He added: "We are ready for them. We stood off more than the attacks they'll be able to mount."

The officer said it's hard to see what they are waiting for.

"There are probably 100,000 of them—three Chinese armies and a bunch of North Koreans—north of Suwon and south of the Han River. They have plenty of food, although they may need a little more heavy equipment," he added.

Another staff officer expressed the opinion that "they'll hit us before the first of the month."

The fight at Yongwol was the bloodiest of the week for the entire front.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Stone reported that most of the two U. N. regiments carrying the battle to the enemy were South Koreans. They were supported by artillery and mortars as they struck east and west of the town.

Murdered Yanks' Bodies Found

Allied patrols were in the town and apparently holding it. Yongwol had changed hands several times earlier in the week.

Seven American correspondents jeeped about Wonju, took pictures and talked to civilians.

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard reported that the Allies met no opposition as they entered Wonju but that they were keeping its few remaining civilians under "surveillance."

The bodies of ten American soldiers, nine of them apparently murdered by their North Korean captors, were found Friday by a U. N. patrol on the east central front. One of the U. S. soldiers apparently had died of battle wounds.

The murdered men had been shot in the head.

Sen. Robertson Urges Tax Boost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Sen. A. Willis Robertson proposed today that Congress shoot from the hip at inflation with an immediate further tax increase of $8,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000.

He wants to raise taxes on individuals, corporations and on some goods, including whisky.

Robertson, a Virginia Democrat, said it is unrealistic to assume that a bill to produce the entire $16,500,000,000 President Truman seeks to balance the budget can be enacted much before next December. Meanwhile, he said, billions in potential additional revenue will be slipping away and inflation may flare into greater violence.

"The practical thing, the logical thing and indeed the urgent thing for Congress to do is to quickly enact a modified tax bill calculated to absorb some $8,000,000,000 or $9,000,000,000 of current income," Robertson said in a statement.

Bomber And Fighter Collide, Killing Three

PRATTVILLE, Ala., Jan. 19 (AP)—Three airmen were killed after an Air Force B-25 bomber and F-51 fighter collided in mid-air and crashed about half a mile apart near here today.

Pilots of both planes got their parachutes open but only the B-25 pilot lived.

Capt. Rex Ellis, public information officer at Maxwell Air Force base, Montgomery, where the bomber was based, said the fighter plane pilot was injured fatally.

Two crewmen in the B-25 went down with the plane, he said.

Ingenito Guilty; Given Life Term

WOODBURY, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP)—Ernest Ingenito, charged with the slaying of five of his wife's relatives, tonight was found guilty of first degree murder with a recommendation of mercy.

The jury of seven women and five men brought in its verdict at 9:27 p. m., after deliberating nearly five hours.

The recommendations for mercy, under New Jersey law, carries a sentence of life imprisonment. The state had asked for death. The defense called for the 26-year-old appliance salesman to be punished but argued it should be no worse than second degree murder.

Ingenito was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor by Gloucester County Judge John B. Wick.

Plan To Condemn China Is Delayed By Consultations

Arab-Asian Nations Favor New Appeal

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 19 (AP)—U. N. action on Red China bogged down today in a welter of behind-the-scenes conferences on the next moves.

Sponsors of a plan to brand the Communist Chinese as aggressors delayed presenting a formal resolution to the U. N. Political Committee to give some delegations more time to consult their governments on details of the proposal.

A U. S. spokesman reported that the American delegation found "quite solid" support for the denunciatory resolution in conferences with British commonwealth countries and France. They were unable, however, to draft a proposal for presentation to the committee today, as was expected, he said.

Arab-Asian Bloc Favors Appeal

Ten Middle Eastern and Asian countries met for two hours and were reported to have agreed on proposing a new appeal to Red China, based on a cease-fire in Korea in exchange for a seven-power conference. This parley would not be held in China, as demanded by the Peiping regime, but in a place to be picked by the United Nations. Under the reported plan, the Chinese demand for a U. N. seat would be decided at the conference, and not beforehand as the Peiping government asked.

Lebanon, Iran Absent

Lebanon and Iran were absent from today's conference, giving rise to speculation that harmony was not complete in the Asian-Middle East camp, although there was no official explanation for their absence.

Some of the sponsors were reported to have little hope for its chances of acceptance by the Red Chinese, but wanted to make the appeal anyway for the record before lining up behind the U. S. demand for the aggressor tag.

Yugoslavia Ends State Of War With Austria

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Jan. 19 (AP) — Premier Marshal Tito's government today ended its state of war with Austria. A decree by the Presidium of the national parliament, acting on a government motion, made it official.

This step was in line with Yugoslavia's efforts to improve relations with her non-cominform neighbors and strengthen the country's strategic position for the critical months ahead. The government announced it is preparing to end the state of war with West Germany also.

Linda Files For Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19 (INS)—Film Star Linda Darnell today filed suit for divorce against Cameraman Peverell Marley on mental cruelty charges. Linda and Marley separated last July after seven years of marriage.

Gen. Collins Declares Army Will Have Equivalent Of 24 Combat Divisions By July 1

But Says Goal May Have To Be Boosted In Testimony Supporting Military Measure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today that Army strength by July 1 will be equivalent to 24 combat divisions compared with "the 12 or 14 previously mentioned."

The mid-year total will include 18 actual divisions together with many combat units not organized as divisions, Collins said. He did not indicate the Army's present combat power.

The Army Chief of Staff agreed with Adm. Forrest P. Sherman that the nation's current goal of 3,462,205 persons in the armed services may have to be boosted.

Support UMT Measure

Collins and Sherman, together with Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg of the Air Force, all members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified separately before the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee. They supported the administration's bill to draft 18-year-olds, extend the draft induction period to 27 months, and establish universal training.

Collins said he had called for a study of the problem of getting more combat strength out of Army manpower. He added:

"We will be able to get one combat division and possibly two divisions without upping strength."

An Army division contains some 18,000 men. It has been estimated that an average of 20,000 to 40,000 persons are required to support it in administrative, supply and other capacities.

Many Antiaircraft Units

The buildup of combat strength by July will include 18 divisions and 18 regimental combat teams with supporting units, together with numerous independent tank battalions, field artillery battalions and similar combat units, the General said.

"We will have a great number of antiaircraft units that are actually combat units," he went on.

Sherman, chief of naval operations, made no forecast of what the new military manpower goal might be as he gave his "personal opinion" that the target may have to be raised unless the world situation improves.

Fumes Spread Panic In Plant

DADE CITY, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP) — Fumes from a chlorine-base disinfectant threw 600 women into panic in one part of the big Pasco Packing Company here today and sent 175 of them to a hospital for treatment.

Dr. W. H. Walters and Dr. Wardlow Jones said all almost certainly would recover and only about a dozen would have to remain in the hospital.

"Dropping like flies," was a favored expression used by the women in describing how they passed out when the fumes from the disinfectant burst upon them in the sectionizing room at the plant.

The little 31-bed Jackson Memorial Hospital was crammed with ambulance-loads of women. They were lying in the halls, on porches, anywhere they could find a spot. Women kept coming five hours after the accident.

A. L. Hemingway, plant foreman, said the accident happened like this in the sectionizing department where grapefruit is cut into sections for putting into cans:

An unidentified workman dipped an old grapefruit can into a two-foot high keg of commercial disinfectant powder which is 70 per cent chlorine.

Apparently there was still some juice in the can and the liquid set off a chemical reaction. The fumes sifted into the ventilating system and the blowers took them all over the big room.

FCC Orders Probe Of Long Distance Telephone Rates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today ordered an inquiry into interstate and foreign long distance telephone service. The idea is to see whether charges to the public in those fields can be reduced.

The commission said the investigation, covering the Bell System operated by American Telephone and Telegraph Co., was prompted by recent reports of increased earnings by A. T. & T.

The parent company and its 22 affiliates in the U. S. were directed to file a statement on the matter with the FCC before March 23.

Initial hearings were ordered to begin here April 16.

U. S. Military Chiefs Think U.N.Can Hold

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Top Army and Air Force chiefs just back from a flying trip to Korea were reported by a senator today to have expressed conviction that U. N. forces can hold on there.

The two military leaders, Gens. J. Lawton Collins of the Army and Hoyt Vandenberg of the Air Force met with a Senate subcommittee for an hour-long report on what they found.

Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee later told reporters the generals had given senators "a brief but complete account of the Korean situation."

Another senator who sat in the hush-hush discussion but would not permit use of his name told a reporter both generals said the U. N. forces can hold on. This senator said there was no talk about a complete withdrawal or evacuation.

Truman Links Stalin With All Other Dictators

Predicts Free World Will Win Struggle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — President Truman tonight bluntly linked Russian Premier Stalin with all dictators who sought "enslavement of the common people" and predicted the free world will win the struggle against "the materialist forces" arrayed against them.

Mr. Truman said "there isn't any difference" between Hitler, Mussolini, Charles the First of England, Louis 14th and other dictators and the Russian leader.

"They are all just alike," Mr. Truman told a "business mobilization dinner" of the Society of Business Magazine Editors.

"Alexander the First of Russia was just as much a dictator as any other that ever existed. They believed in the enslavement of the common people."

"There is no difference between dictators, if you study your history. There has not been any difference in any police state that ever existed in the history of the world. They are all alike. They are all for the enslavement of the individual for the benefit of the state."

Mr. Truman dropped in on the dinner to help honor his old friend Paul Wooton, representative of the Chilton Publications and Washington correspondent for the New Orleans Times Picayune.

While Mr. Truman has repeatedly denounced Soviet Russia and Communist imperialism, tonight's comment was one of the rare occasions in which he has taken Stalin personally to task in public.

Defense Dept. Revises College Draft Rule

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Defense Department today knocked out a draft rule which had caused many college students to quit school in mid-term.

The new order gives the student who gets a draft notice the right to volunteer for the armed service of his choice. As is the practice now, he won't be called to duty until the end of the school year he has started.

Under the old plan, the student getting a draft call automatically was destined for the army.

As a result, the Defense Department said, numbers of them dropped out of school to volunteer and get their choice.

The new order permits them to wait until near the end of the college year before signifying their choice.

14-Year-Old Korea Veteran Heads Back To Schoolroom

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 19 (AP) — Fourteen-year-old James D. Byrd is headed back to a sixth-grade schoolroom—via Korea and as an ex-soldier.

But when he goes back, it will be much against his wishes. He wants to stay in the Army, where he'd dreamed of being since he was eight.

James, recovering from frostbitten fingers and toes at Percy Jones Army Hospital here, tried twice to enlist before he was able to convince an "eager-beaver" recruiting sergeant at Columbus, O., last June 9 he was 18.

An alert blond, James is five feet, nine inches tall and weighs 150 pounds.

Maj. Chester H. Davis, Percy Jones executive officer, says as soon as James recovers he will be given an honorable discharge from the Army because of his age.

James looks gloomily to that day, saying: "I'll have to go back to school, I guess, but I don't like it."

He ran away from his sixth-grade school room near Beckley, W. Va., to enlist. He tried first at Marion, Va., and then at London, Ky., but couldn't convince recruiters he was 18. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil R. Davis, now of Youngstown, O.

Allied Forces Reoccupy Key City Of Wonju

1,000 Korean Reds Slain Near Yongwol

TOKYO, Saturday, Jan. 20 (AP)—United Nations forces stabbed deep inside Red lines on three frozen sectors of the Korean front today in the face of an expected third all-out Communist offensive.

Three sizable Allied patrols, led by tanks, reoccupied Wonju on the central front Friday without opposition. The battered key rail and highway center had been abandoned by the U. S. Second Division Tuesday.

About 10,000 Allied troops jumped off across the snowbound east-central front Friday near Yongwol, 30 miles southeast of Wonju, and, with airpower to help, killed an estimated 1,000 North Korean Reds.

On the western front, where a roving band of tank-supported doughboys had been harassing Red lines all week, brief skirmishes were reported near Osan, 28 miles southeast of Seoul.

Small, sharp patrol fights flared at many points along the Korean no-man's-land.

Allies Are Ready

A U. N. division staff officer said the Reds will strike "when they are damn good and ready."

He added: "We are ready for them. We stood off more than the attacks they'll be able to mount."

The officer said it's hard to see what they are waiting for.

"There are probably 100,000 of them—three Chinese armies and a bunch of North Koreans—north of Suwon and south of the Han River. They have plenty of food, although they may need a little more heavy equipment," he added.

Another staff officer expressed the opinion that "they'll hit us before the first of the month."

The fight at Yongwol was the bloodiest of the week for the entire front.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Stone reported that most of the two U. N. regiments carrying the battle to the enemy were South Koreans. They were supported by artillery and mortars as they struck east and west of the town.

Murdered Yanks' Bodies Found

Allied patrols were in the town and apparently holding it. Yongwol had changed hands several times earlier in the week.

Seven American correspondents jeeped about Wonju, took pictures and talked to civilians.

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard reported that the Allies met no opposition as they entered Wonju but that they were keeping its few remaining civilians under "surveillance."

The bodies of ten American soldiers, nine of them apparently murdered by their North Korean captors, were found Friday by a U. N. patrol on the east central front. One of the U. S. soldiers apparently had died of battle wounds.

The murdered men had been shot in the head.

Sen. Robertson Urges Tax Boost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Sen. A. Willis Robertson proposed today that Congress shoot from the hip at inflation with an immediate further tax increase of $8,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000.

He wants to raise taxes on individuals, corporations and on some goods, including whisky.

Robertson, a Virginia Democrat, said it is unrealistic to assume that a bill to produce the entire $16,500,000,000 President Truman seeks to balance the budget can be enacted much before next December. Meanwhile, he said, billions in potential additional revenue will be slipping away and inflation may flare into greater violence.

"The practical thing, the logical thing and indeed the urgent thing for Congress to do is to quickly enact a modified tax bill calculated to absorb some $8,000,000,000 or $9,000,000,000 of current income," Robertson said in a statement.

Bomber And Fighter Collide, Killing Three

PRATTVILLE, Ala., Jan. 19 (AP)—Three airmen were killed after an Air Force B-25 bomber and F-51 fighter collided in mid-air and crashed about half a mile apart near here today.

Pilots of both planes got their parachutes open but only the B-25 pilot lived.

Capt. Rex Ellis, public information officer at Maxwell Air Force base, Montgomery, where the bomber was based, said the fighter plane pilot was injured fatally.

Two crewmen in the B-25 went down with the plane, he said.

McKeldin Urges Constitutional Convention Call

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 19 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin established himself today as an active proponent of a convention to rewrite Maryland's constitution.

He said he had passed word along to House Minority Leader Lofstrand (R-Montgomery) that Republicans were obliged to support a convention call.

"We are pledged to it in our platform," McKeldin said at a news conference. "We have to be for it."

McKeldin has frequently expressed personal support for legislation to hold a constitutional convention. Voters approved one by almost a 4-to-1 majority last November.

A referendum must be held every 20 years. But the Legislature must pass an enabling act, otherwise no convention would be held.

McKeldin said he had heard reports that considerable opposition to a convention was developing in Western Maryland, from which Republicans derive much of their strength in the Assembly. That was one reason for conferring with Lofstrand, he explained.

The Governor said he would "have to give some thought" to new proposals for a veterans' bonus. The GOP platform also had endorsed a referendum on a bonus for Marylanders who served in World War II.

Meanwhile, the House of Delegates held the first Friday business meeting of the current session.

During their brief meeting, the delegates passed and sent along to the Governor a Senate bill requiring a statement in bold print in all installment contracts for automobile purchases of exactly what type insurance is provided.

It was the first piece of legislation to clear the 1951 General Assembly and the first upon which McKeldin will be called to pass upon as governor.

Six new bills came into the House.

One, by Delegate Wilkinson (D-Prince George's), would shave sales tax returns by exempting purchases of candy from the two per cent consumers' tax. Wilkinson estimated his proposal would cost the state $40,000 in tax receipts.

Katz Becomes Aide To Fifth Governor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 19 (AP)—State Police Capt. Menash E. Katz saluted solemnly today and became aide to his fifth governor.

The veteran officer, long commander of the State House guard, received his commission from Gov. McKeldin at a ceremony witnessed, by State House employes and newsmen.

"Thank you, sir," Katz said and raised his right arm in a second salute.

"I have five of them" Katz confided later. He displayed commissions bearing the great seal of Maryland and signatures of former Govs. Ritchie, Nice, O'Conor and Lane.

Motive Sought In Boy's Slaying

CRETE, Ill., Jan. 19 (AP) — Police investigating the seeming motiveless kidnaping and strangling of 13-year-old Billy Rodenberg sought to learn today whether he was the victim of a "thrill" killing.

Other theories under study are that he was killed by abductors who grew panicky during an intensive two-day plane and posse search made for the missing boy, or that young "bullies" choked him to death accidentally to keep him from crying.

The body of the slender, bespectacled carpenter's son was reported tossed from an automobile last night on a residential street where the body was found. Four Civilian Air Patrol planes and a posse of 150 persons had been searching the area 35 miles south of Chicago since he disappeared 53 hours earlier.

The lads eyes were swollen from crying or being blindfolded or both.

Acting Police Chief Michael Murphy said authorities so far are "at a total loss for clues."

ATLANTA, Jan. 19 (AP) — The Georgia Senate today unanimously passed and sent to the Governor a bill to outlaw mask wearing, cross burning, and intimidation.

The measure passed the House last week with only one dissenting vote. Gov. Talmadge has said he would sign such a bill into law.

The bill makes it a misdemeanor to wear a mask or burn crosses on public property, or on private property unless the owner gives written permission. It also makes it a misdemeanor for any person or group to attempt to intimidate in any manner any other person or group.

Georgia Senate Passes Anti-Intimidation Bill

ATLANTA, Jan. 19 (AP) — The Georgia Senate today unanimously passed and sent to the Governor a bill to outlaw mask wearing, cross burning, and intimidation.

The measure passed the House last week with only one dissenting vote. Gov. Talmadge has said he would sign such a bill into law.

The bill makes it a misdemeanor to wear a mask or burn crosses on public property, or on private property unless the owner gives written permission. It also makes it a misdemeanor for any person or group to attempt to intimidate in any manner any other person or group.

Your first eye-smacking look at the line of lovelies pictured here tells you that they've got what it takes in visual charm.

But the fellow who said a picture speaks louder than a thousand words wasn't talking about these superbly able 1951 Buicks.

But they're also smartly powered—smartly engineered—smartly priced. And it would take a book to describe in full their deep-down goodness.

What's been done for '51 is to take the best automobiles that ever bore the Buick name—and top them.

† Optional at extra cost—available on most models. (Not presently available in California or Massachusetts)

Come, look them over, and you'll see what we mean.

There's the SPECIAL which can accurately be titled "the newest car in the world"—new in structure, new in power, new in dimensions, new in thrift—and potent in price appeal.

There's the SUPER—that looks and is a smart new edition of its "best seller" forebear.

Then there's the ROADMASTER—that coddles your anatomy on luxurious new fabrics and cloud-soft cushions—pampers your pride with its lordly bearing—shoots a delicious tingle right up your spine by the exuberance of its power and action.

City Police Cost Small Compared To Other Cities

Cumberland taxpayers have a smaller annual bill for police protection than do residents of most other cities of its size in the United States.

This is shown in data gathered by the International City Managers Association for its current Municipal Year Book.

The bill for the local department came to $186,000 in 1949, equivalent to $3.98 for each resident of the city. In other communities of relative size, 25,000 to 50,000, the cost of police operations came to $4.92 per capita.

Nationally, for all cities of 10,000 population and over, the average cost was $7.22 per capita.

Most of the cost of operating police departments is for wages and salaries, which constitute almost 84 percent of the total, excluding retirement payments. In Cumberland, the part budgeted for payroll is 81 percent.

An examination of beginning and maximum salaries paid patrolmen on municipal police forces shows that a wide range exists. In Cumberland's size group, the median entrance salary is $2,663 a year and the maximum $2,940, cost of living additions included.

Locally, patrolmen started at $2,280 and had a top of $2,640 as of the beginning of the year.

Nearly 5,000 people living on Great Britain's lonely St. Helena Island in the South Atlantic Ocean get along satisfactorily on their 47-square-mile exposed submarine mountain summit without an internal mail system. A large part of the revenue of this island of Napoleon's exile, however, comes from the sale of its postage stamps to collectors.

The Lend-Lease Account

Hard as it is to get the Russians to agree with Americans on ordinary matters of international affairs, the State Department is having another try at a still harder project. This is the attempt to obtain a settlement of the account for lend-lease materials and equipment sent to Russia during the war and kept after the war for peacetime use. The United States wants 186 small naval craft back, and wants cash payment for the other things.

The Russians have been induced to enter a conference on the matter In this they confess at least that there is some foundation for the American claims. As a matter of fact they have returned a few small vessels since the war, and occasionally indicate that they intend someday to return the rest. Apparently they will wear them out first if they can. No progress worthy of the name has been made toward getting settlement for supplies used after the war or still held, nor for patent use claims by American oil companies.

This lend-lease account doubtless has not been brought to the attention of the Russian people, at least not by their own government. Moscow is fond of pretending that Russia won the war alone, and that the United States, far from helping, has always been a threat to Russian security. This line of propaganda might pale a little if the Russian people knew about the eleven billion dollars' worth of lend-lease aid. That which went for war uses has been considered well spent. The rest might be well spent, too, if the Russian people found out about it.

Books Across The Sea

One function of the United Nations Educational, Cultural and Scientific Organization is the issuance of coupons which are used in place of currency in the purchasing of American books by nationals of other countries. Much red tape is thereby cut.

It started two years ago with a Scottish farmer who tried without success to purchase in London a certain American book on agricultural technique. Dollars, pounds and customs regulations would have been involved if the regular procedures in sending to America for the book had been followed. Instead, the coupon system was devised The UNESCO furnishes coupons, which can be bought for British or other currency. This international scrip has since been used in many countries, India leading the world in the amount of book purchases Textbooks, medical journals, treatises on beekeeping and fiction have been acquired in this manner. The UNESCO finishes the job by redeeming the coupons with American dollars, to pay the sellers of the books.

Here is one instance where a United Nations agency is accomplishing what the whole body was intended to do: it simplifies and smoothes out international transactions, removing causes of possible friction.

Outgrowing "Hell Week"

"Hell Week" as observed by fraternities in many colleges, has involved practices approaching the fiendish. The tendency toward cruelty which sometimes seems inherent in the young has been allowed full play, with occasional serious and even tragic results.

In one Midwestern college, the death of two students as a direct result of "Hell Week" observance awakened the college world with a jolt. This school now forbids these goings-on, and such projects as helping to make substandard housing more livable have been adopted in their place. The University of Massachusetts Interfraternity Council has recently replaced the former initiation stunts by "Character-building Week."

College students can no longer be called boys and girls. Maturity has been thrust upon them, whether they are ready for it or not. It is heartening to see them put aside childish, senseless horseplay in favor of more enlightened activities.

Spanish Troops

Spain is being sounded out, the report goes, as to whether it will send troops for the proposed European army. and if so how many. The story goes that Franco is more than willing if equipment is furnished.

Unless manpower is everything and efficiency something to be acquired later, any Spanish troops would be no great addition to the United Nations' cause. In the 1920's Spain proved utterly unable to put down the rebellion of Abd el Krim in Morocco, and finally had to turn the job over to France. Hitler put some Spanish troops on the Russian front, and found them quite unsatisfactory The burden of proof is on those who maintain that the Spanish army is any better now.

It is not being unduly cynical to wonder if Franco is not thinking that an army, equipped at the expense of someone else, would be a valuable asset for his dictatorship in the event of internal troubles.

International Curiosity

Where is the world's largest collection of books on American life, outside of the United States? H. L. White, Australia's Commonwealth librarian, thinks that it may be in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library of American Literature in the Commonwealth National Library at Canberra, the Australian capital. The aim of this collection is not merely to tell Australians about the United States, but to interpret our accomplishments and aspirations to the peoples of Southeast Asia, where Australia can often win a better hearing than we can.

Americans are perhaps a little too apt to take it for granted that other peoples should want to know all about us. It might make for better international feeling, and help in the solution of our problems, if we took as much interest in other countries as the Australians are taking in us.

Strain Of Ties

Reports from Ottawa say that a sore spot is developing in official relations between the United States and Canada over the situation in the Far East. The participation of Canada in the United Nations action in Korea has been hardly more than a token. United States efforts to stir the Canadian government to more activity have not been too happily received, since Canada does not see eye to eye with us on some basic points of Far Eastern policy. Such differences strain friendship, but when close friends disagree they have a chance to learn something

Many a true word has been mistakenly regarded as a jest.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Odd Walks

DON'T ACCUSE everyone who is seen staggering down the street of being drunk. The man or woman may be ill, as a score of medical conditions alter the gait. Moreover, there is enough difference in the manner in which the person proceeds to permit the physician to tell at a glance what is wrong.

In alcoholic intoxication the subject totters, reels, lurches, and staggers forward, backward, and sideways. This is in contrast to the unsteady maneuvering of a victim of brain tumor who has a tendency to fall toward the side on which the lesion is located. The same occurs in dizziness resulting from ear infection.

In World War II many young men developed a swollen and painful ankle which they thought had been sprained while going over the obstacle course; but the diagnosis obviously was incorrect when on the following day a knee or elbow was involved similarly. They were victims of rheumatic fever. The soldiers assumed that exercise was responsible for the original incident. This sort of thing happens frequently with children. Should a youngster start limping, the parents may blame an accident or fall; they usually are right because boys and girls are likely to hurt themselves several times a day; but occasionally the limp is caused by arthritis or rheumatic fever which, when mild, may go undetected because junior remembers that he fell or stumbled a few days previously. In case of doubt it is always wise to call the family physician. Along the same line we should not attribute stumbling and toe dragging to clumsiness or laziness.

The individual who limps because of a painful joint walks differently from one who is paralyzed or has a short leg. The foot that hurts is dragged on the ground carefully to avoid injury and the weight of the body is then borne just long enough to permit the sound leg to be swung forward hurriedly. In this way the person hobbles along painfully until he reaches his goal. When one leg is shorter than the other, the body drops slightly when the shorter leg is put on the ground. The opposite hip sticks out more prominently and the knee is kept bent. To maintain balance the body frequently is swung over to the affected side; on standing still the spine is bent to compensate for the tilt in the pelvis.

• – • – •

Those who have recuperated from polio or have weak muscles from other causes also have a special gait. The impaired extremity is thrown forward and almost simultaneously the trunk is moved over to the involved side to balance the center of gravity over the joints. This is necessary because the muscles do not have the strength to hold up the body; the weight must be carried entirely by the skeletal structures. After a stroke, difficulty in walking is common because the muscles on the paralyzed side are more rigid than usual. The leg moves with the body because it is stiff. In propelling the extremity the person swings it in a semi-circle. Both legs are likely to be involved in multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy and lateral sclerosis. The limbs are stiff and weak and to move forward they perform the same arc except that one leg crosses in front of the other. This is known as the "scissors' gait."

Food Poisoning

Mrs. U. writes: What can be done for pork poisoning?

REPLY

If you refer to food poisoning from contaminated pork, the stomach can be washed out via a tube if symptoms appear soon after eating. After several hours have elapsed, it may be possible to eliminate the tainted meat remaining in the system by giving Epsom salts or other purgative, unless diarrhea already exists. On the other hand, once the food is digested, nothing can be done except to wait and see what happens.

• – • – •

Stomach Position

Mrs. R. writes: Does an upside down stomach cause poor appetite in a woman of 70?

REPLY

This is questionable because in all probability the stomach has been "upside down" for a long time. Appetite at 70 may not be good except for breakfast, which is considered the "best meal of the day" by many oldsters.

DON'T BLACKLIST SALT

O. W. T. writes: I have read that the use of salt causes kidney disease, hardening of the arteries, and high blood pressure. Is this true?

REPLY

No. Salt enters the picture only because it is restricted when hypertension is present or heart or kidney trouble leads to a dropsical condition. Blaming these disorders on salt would be the same as saying just because victims of heart disease cannot exercise strenuously that heart disease is caused by exercise.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Charles Wilson Alerts Staff For Wage-Price Control Clamp-Down; New Factories Will Be Tempting Targets For Enemy; House To Be Reapportioned

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Mobilization boss Charles Wilson has ordered his staff to be ready to clamp down price and wage controls within two weeks. He got the nod last week from President Truman who has finally agreed to all-out controls.

Previously the President had gone along with the Federal Reserve Board, which advised against putting the economy in a government strait jacket. The board argued that indirect controls, such as higher taxes and restrictions on consumer and bank credits, would eventually curb inflation. These indirect methods, however, have failed to hold down prices.

At the same time, a shake-up in the mobilization high-command may also accompany the new controls. For example, Wilson makes no secret around his office that he hopes to get rid of Price Administrator Mike Di Salle and Di Salle doesn't try to conceal his distaste for Economic Stabilization Director Alan Valentine. All this backbiting is likely to result in some heads rolling.

Meanwhile, across the Potomac in the Pentagon, the new Munitions Board Chairman John D. Small has been given 90 days to straighten out the mess he inherited. He took over the reins from Hubert Howard after the Munitions Board had failed in its assigment to stockpile strategic materials. However, President Truman still isn't satisfied with the board's progress, and has applied the spurs to the new chairman.

Dissecting Taft

Democrat senators were verbally dissecting Sen. Robert A. (for Alphonso) Taft in the Senate cloakroom the other day.

"Bob has a good mind and always brings up interesting points," defended Illinois' Sen. Paul Douglas.

"But what about his know-it-all atttiude that even gripes the Republicans?" he was asked.

"The truth is," Douglas explained, "the Senator is two people. He is Bob Taft, and he is Alphonso Taft."

Industrial Targets

In the haste to expand war production, the government is paying no attention to dispersal but is throwing up new factories right where the Russians can bomb them easiest. The truth is, 90 per cent of our new plants are being built in industrial areas that are already tempting targets.

Of approximately 80 defense plants now approved for construction, 18 are located in Pennsylvania's industrial heartland. The rest will be built in the production centers of Ohio, Michigan, Alabama, Illinois and New York—with a few scattered plants in Indiana, West Virginia, Kentucky, California, Maryland and Connecticut.

In other words, instead of scattering these factories around the country, the government is concentrating them in big cities such as Pittsburgh, Detroit, Birmingham, Chicago and Los Angeles. This not only makes our defense facilities more vulnerable, but adds to the housing, transportation and educational problems of these overcrowded centers.

Technically, the new plants will not be built by the government but by private companies. However, the government has a powerful say-so through its certification system. This is handled by the National Security Resources Board, which issues certificates of necessity for building defense plants. Only factories that have been certified by the NSRB are eligible for big tax reductions under the Defense Production Act.

Needless to say, this is a powerful lever for keeping the plant owners in line. However, the NSRB, while it has encouraged dispersal, has not enforced it. As a result, the owners are building their new factories right alongside the old.

It may be more costly to build defense plants in remote regions, but it would be safer from enemy air attack, hence a lot cheaper in the long run.

Rival Newsboys

Two rival newsboys, taking sides in the Pearson-McCarthy feud, carried on a shouting match on a busy Washington street corner the other day.

The boy hawking the Washington Times-Herald shouted: "Senator McCarthy accuses Pearson of publishing documents!"

Not to be outdone, the boy selling the Washington Post on the same corner shouted back: "Drew Pearson tells how Senator McCarthy aided Nazi war criminals! Read all about it!"

Shifts In The House

One of the toughest questions facing the 82nd Congress is the reapportionment of the House of Representatives to conform with population shifts of the last census.

It is easy enough to transfer the 14 seats from nine states that gained the least in population to the states that gained the most. However, this won't solve the problem.

Sooner or later Congress must face the fact that the House—the chamber our founding fathers said should be "close" to the people—hasn't grown up with the country. The first House of Representatives (1789-91) had 65 members, or one to approximately 61,500 people. Today the ratio is one congressman to approximately 346,000 people.

To use a more modern comparison, there were about 92,000,000 people in the United States in 1911 when the number of House seats was raised to 435. Today we still have 435 House members, though the population has grown by more than a third.

Smart, young Rep. Frank Chelf of Kentucky did some straight talking on this the other day to President Truman in a plea for his bill to raise House membership from 435 to 450.

"I don't want the House so big that the tail will wag the dog, and my bill doesn't do that, "explained Chelf. "But we've simply got to do something to give the people the democratic representation they deserve and the framers of the Constitution wanted them to have."

Truman promised to "think it over."

NOTE — Under reapportionment, California (which has led the population spurt since the 1940 census) will gain seven House seats, Florida will gain two, and Maryland, Michigan, Texas Virginia and Washington, one each. Pennsylvania will lose three seats; Missouri, New York and Oklahoma, two each; and Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee, one each.

Effects Of Inflation Hold Hardships For "Savers"

By MARK SULLIVAN

PRESIDENT Truman, in his economic message last week, spoke about inflation, the present existence of it and the danger of more. His concluding words were: "This must not happen."

Those words have a sound of firm determination. One must assume that Mr. Truman means them and that inflation will be checked. One step towards stopping inflation has been taken, it is an action of the Federal Reserve Board by which quantity of credit is restrained, including bank credit and credit used in installment selling. This, so far as it goes, is a direct and effective attack upon inflation. In addition, agencies for other steps—controls over prices, wages and the like—have been set up and are beginning to function. Movement toward check of inflation is under way.

Yet Mr. Truman's words "this must not happen," would convey the spirit of firm determination more surely if he had not said the equivalent of them before, at various times. During the early months of his Administration, and also during the Roosevelt one, the spirit of determination was conveyed by a slogan which had almost an official status: "Hold the line against inflation."

But along with that slogan Mr. Truman had a policy. In several formal statements during late 1945 he urged raises of wage rates in industry. The urgings were accompanied by an admonition that the wage raises be "non-inflationary," meaning that they should not be accompanied by increases in prices of goods. This policy of Mr. Truman's was put on the basis of an economic theory, the purpose put forward was to increase the country's purchasing power by increasing wage rates for labor.

The policy prevailed over the slogan. In January, 1946, the Administration, in order to end a strike, brought about a raise in the wage rates of labor in the steel industry, and simultaneously announced an increase of five dollars a ton in the price of steel. With that double action the slogan "Hold the line against inflation" evaporated. There ensued a twin parade of wage raises and price increases which has been a spiral mechanism of inflation which has gone on to this day and which has had especially strong momentum the past few months. This wage-price spiral, coupled with price support of farm crops, composed most of the dynamic mechanism of inflation.

In the part of Mr. Truman's economic message dealing with inflation he included four of its effects which are especially deadly. He said that if inflation continues it would "destroy confidence . . . impair the value of the dollar, dissipate the value of savings, and impose an intolerable burden upon fixed income groups." These effects of inflation bear with especial hardship on one immense class of the people.

In what may be looked upon as the grand divisions of the American economy and society, an immense one and perhaps the most vitally important, is the savers. These include holders of the familiar government savings bonds, holders of life insurance policies or beneficiaries of them, depositors in savings banks, groups who have savings in pension funds, other groups who have various kinds of fixed income securities.

In the act of saving the purpose of these groups is to provide for their future. They save in order that when they are old or retired they shall be able to live upon their savings. This purpose is realized only if the dollars they have put into savings retain approximately the purchasing power they had at the time of saving them; if they buy, ten or twenty years hence, as much goods as they bought when saved.

This expectation and reliance is being threatened or defeated. Persons who have put their saved dollars into savings banks, life insurance, savings bonds or the like, find that their saved dollars, when they come back, have lost a material percentage of their purchasing power. A dollar which, when saved ten years ago, was the equivalent of say three pounds of steak, will today buy hardly one pound, and so as to other forms of food and goods.

The effect of inflation and depreciation of the purchasing power of the dollar upon savers, who in many cases are old or retired, is more cruel than upon other groups. Labor, by reason of organization, is able to gallop along with inflation; to keep up with it by repeated raises in wage rates. Farmers are able to keep up with it by reason of government price support of farm crops. Further than human consideration, savers deserve consideration for their value to the country. If inflation should go to a point at which savers begin to wonder whether saving is worth while, the effect on the country and its economy would be serious.

Relations Of Congress, President Are Improving

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. — Relations between Congress and President Truman are getting better. There's a rift in the clouds and a bit of amicability is beginning to appear.

Apparently President Truman did not mean to be brusque with Congress last week when he said, in effect, he would consult Congress but would do as he pleased about sending troops abroad. He told the reporters that maybe they didn't write the story the way he meant it. They, of course, wrote what they heard him say. Mr. Truman thinks the implications of his words were perhaps misconstrued or ignored.

These misunderstandings will occur. Mr. Truman is really not complaining that the reporting was unsound but that at times things don't sound in print like they sound when he says them. Maybe they ought to have a system of sound effects to cure this so that the exact intonation of voice could be recorded. Maybe the whole press conference should be put on radio and television so that the public —whose business is being discussed —can judge for itself what the inflections of a presidential voice really mean.

As for Congress, there are signs that Senator Taft is softening or clarifying his position, too. He wouldn't object to sending troops to Europe, he says, but wants Congress to spell out some sort of ratio so that America will supply certain divisions and the other nations some divisions in proper proportion.

Anyway, there seems to be a convergence toward agreement. So far as foreign governments are concerned, they can properly derive from these modifications, clarifications, and explanations that the executive and legislative branches of the American government are beginning to see eye to eye on the major things—they are agreed on what the diplomats call the "principle," and there are just some slight details of difference on how the principle shall be applied.

Basically there never was any doubt that, if the President asked Congress for authority to station our troops in Europe as a part of our North Atlantic treaty obligation, he would get such authority by overwhelming vote. The legalists who told him a bad precedent would be created if he asked for such authority were giving Mr. Truman poor advice. The President of the United States can always act of his own initiative in sending troops out of the country if there is danger. He does not need to wait for congressional action. But where there is time, the words of the Constitution would seem to imply that he ask for congressional authority soon after he sends the troops abroad, if not before.

It may be stated also that a declaration which recognizes a state of war with Communist China, if submitted to Congress now, would pass by an overwhelming vote of both houses. Congressional sentiment is almost unanimous on the rejection of the phony "peace" proposal made by the Chinese Communists, and there is complete backing for the Department of State in its efforts to obtain the adoption at the United Nations of a resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor.

Under the American system of free discussion, world policies are praised or criticized, or proposals for amendment are made publicly. Thus every official of the Department of State knows what Congress is thinking about and, if not, members of the congressional committees are free to come in and talk about it or write in or telephone.

What is needed here mostly is to encourage a spirit of cooperation—to instill the feeling at the Department of State that members of Congress have a responsibility to their constituents and also to instill on Capitol Hill the feeling that the Department of State will welcome advice. Having established the right kind of relationship between the two branches of government, it then becomes essential for Congress to recognize that under the Constitution the conduct of foreign relations is an executive function and that the President and Secretary of State must make the final decisions and be held accountable for them to the country.

As one looks back on the somewhat clumsy performances of the last few days, one wonders how much it is all due to the deep-seated partisanship of the President himself, which distrusts the opposition party, and conversely to the distrust which the opposition party has with respect to Mr. Truman and his Secretary of State.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

What Is War?

BUSHROD WASHINGTON, a nephew of our first president and an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, in Bas V. Tingy, defined war as follows:

"It may, I believe, be safely laid down, that every contention by force, between two nations, in external matters, under the authority of their respective governments, is not only war, but public war."

Professor John Bassett Moore, the greatest American authority on international law, said:

"Much confusion may be avoided by bearing in mind the fact that by the term war is meant not the mere employment of force, but the existence of the legal condition of things in which rights are or may be prosecuted by force. . ."

Bynkershoek, commenting on Grotius, said:

"War is a contest between independent parties by way of force or deceit, for the purpose of pursuing their right."

The term "right" here must be interpreted as will, desire, ambition, or perhaps what a side believes either to be correct or its rights.

In the case of the "resolution," the Federal Court of Appeals held:

"A perfect war is that which destroys the national peace and tranquillity, and lays the foundation of every possible act of hostility; the imperfect war is that which does not entirely destroy the public tranquillity, but interrupts it only in some particulars, as in the case of reprisals."

Instead of "perfect" and "imperfect war," the terms "general" and "limited" war have often been used. Our present war with Soviet China is a limited war; it is for this reason that General MacArthur was forbidden to bomb the Yalu River reservoirs. Our war with Soviet Russia, commencing in 1945, has been called a 'cold war" because it was a war limited to deceits rather than involving force.

These various definitions of war are here given because of the very great confusion which exists in many minds as to whether this country is now at war. It is often suggested that our troops are in Korea on a police action ordered by the United Nations. That might have been true up to November 6, when the presence of Soviet China in the war was acknowledged.

Soviet China and Soviet Russia have regarded the United States as the aggressor in the Korean war; whereas the United States has regarded Soviet China as the aggressor and desires that the United Nations so declare it.

Karl Von Clausewitz, the philosopher of war, defines war as follows:

". . . War is nothing but a duel on a larger scale. If we would combine into one conception the countless separate duels of which it consists, we would do well to think of two wrestlers. Each tries by physical force to compel the other to do his will; his immediate object is to overthrow his adversary and thereby make him incapable of any further resistance."

The important word in all this is "will." War exists to break the will of a nation; to subdue it; to destroy it; to bring it to heel.

Clausewitz further says:

". . .Force, that is to say, physical force . . . Is thus the means; to impose our will upon the enemy is the object. To achieve this object with certainty we must disarm the enemy, and this disarming is by definition the proper aim of military action. . ."

It is possible to disarm a nation by strikes, mutinies, subsidizing civil war. It is also possible to achieve this end by infiltration in government, by espionage, by the spread of false rumors, slogans and ideas, by weakening resistance through the propagation of great lies. All these have been employed with a measure of success.

Perhaps one of the most effective non-military weapons is confusing of the issue by extraneous matters. For instance, in the present stage of our war with Soviet China, the fear of Great Britain and France is that this is a Russian stratagem to divert our resources from Europe. Therefore, they minimize the nature of our Asiatic problems in order to emphasize the importance of their European problems. This has caused division in our country.

War itself ignores all these factors, for it moves along killing people and establishing constantly new situations. Withdrawal means defeat immediately; continuance may mean defeat or victory eventually. Therefore, when a nation is engaged in war, its decisions, uncertainties and imponderables are often confusing, particularly when a government, to hide error, fails to be truthful.

The Lend-Lease Account

Hard as it is to get the Russians to agree with Americans on ordinary matters of international affairs, the State Department is having another try at a still harder project. This is the attempt to obtain a settlement of the account for lend-lease materials and equipment sent to Russia during the war and kept after the war for peacetime use. The United States wants 186 small naval craft back, and wants cash payment for the other things.

The Russians have been induced to enter a conference on the matter In this they confess at least that there is some foundation for the American claims. As a matter of fact they have returned a few small vessels since the war, and occasionally indicate that they intend someday to return the rest. Apparently they will wear them out first if they can. No progress worthy of the name has been made toward getting settlement for supplies used after the war or still held, nor for patent use claims by American oil companies.

This lend-lease account doubtless has not been brought to the attention of the Russian people, at least not by their own government. Moscow is fond of pretending that Russia won the war alone, and that the United States, far from helping, has always been a threat to Russian security. This line of propaganda might pale a little if the Russian people knew about the eleven billion dollars' worth of lend-lease aid. That which went for war uses has been considered well spent. The rest might be well spent, too, if the Russian people found out about it.

Books Across The Sea

One function of the United Nations Educational, Cultural and Scientific Organization is the issuance of coupons which are used in place of currency in the purchasing of American books by nationals of other countries. Much red tape is thereby cut.

It started two years ago with a Scottish farmer who tried without success to purchase in London a certain American book on agricultural technique. Dollars, pounds and customs regulations would have been involved if the regular procedures in sending to America for the book had been followed. Instead, the coupon system was devised The UNESCO furnishes coupons, which can be bought for British or other currency. This international scrip has since been used in many countries, India leading the world in the amount of book purchases Textbooks, medical journals, treatises on beekeeping and fiction have been acquired in this manner. The UNESCO finishes the job by redeeming the coupons with American dollars, to pay the sellers of the books.

Here is one instance where a United Nations agency is accomplishing what the whole body was intended to do: it simplifies and smoothes out international transactions, removing causes of possible friction.

Outgrowing "Hell Week"

"Hell Week," as observed by fraternities in many colleges, has involved practices approaching the fiendish. The tendency toward cruelty which sometimes seems inherent in the young has been allowed full play, with occasional serious and even tragic results.

In one Midwestern college, the death of two students as a direct result of "Hell Week" observance awakened the college world with a jolt. This school now forbids these goings-on, and such projects as helping to make substandard housing more livable have been adopted in their place. The University of Massachusetts Interfraternity Council has recently replaced the former initiation stunts by "Character-building Week."

College students can no longer be called boys and girls. Maturity has been thrust upon them, whether they are ready for it or not. It is heartening to see them put aside childish, senseless horseplay in favor of more enlightened activities.

Spanish Troops

Spain is being sounded out, the report goes, as to whether it will send troops for the proposed European army, and if so how many. The story goes that Franco is more than willing if equipment is furnished.

Unless manpower is everything and efficiency something to be acquired later, any Spanish troops would be no great addition to the United Nations' cause. In the 1920's Spain proved utterly unable to put down the rebellion of Abd el Krim in Morocco, and finally had to turn the job over to France. Hitler put some Spanish troops on the Russian front, and found them quite unsatisfactory The burden of proof is on those who maintain that the Spanish army is any better now.

It is not being unduly cynical to wonder if Franco is not thinking that an army, equipped at the expense of someone else, would be a valuable asset for his dictatorship in the event of internal troubles.

International Curiosity

Where is the world's largest collection of books on American life, outside of the United States? H. L. White, Australia's Commonwealth librarian, thinks that it may be in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library of American Literature in the Commonwealth National Library at Canberra, the Australian capital. The aim of this collection is not merely to tell Australians about the United States, but to interpret our accomplishments and aspirations to the peoples of Southeast Asia, where Australia can often win a better hearing than we can.

Americans are perhaps a little too apt to take it for granted that other peoples should want to know all about us. It might make for better international feeling, and help in the solution of our problems, if we took as much interest in other countries as the Australians are taking in us.

Strain Of Ties

Reports from Ottawa say that a sore spot is developing in official relations between the United States and Canada over the situation in the Far East. The participation of Canada in the United Nations action in Korea has been hardly more than a token. United States efforts to stir the Canadian government to more activity have not been too happily received, since Canada does not see eye to eye with us on some basic points of Far Eastern policy. Such differences strain friendship, but when close friends disagree they have a chance to learn something

Many a true word has been mistakenly regarded as a jest.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Odd Walks

DON'T ACCUSE everyone who is seen staggering down the street of being drunk. The man or woman may be ill, as a score of medical conditions alter the gait. Moreover, there is enough difference in the manner in which the person proceeds to permit the physician to tell at a glance what is wrong.

In alcoholic intoxication the subject totters, reels, lurches, and staggers forward, backward, and sideways. This is in contrast to the unsteady maneuvering of a victim of brain tumor who has a tendency to fall toward the side on which the lesion is located. The same occurs in dizziness resulting from ear infection.

• — • — •

In World War II many young men developed a swollen and painful ankle which they thought had been sprained while going over the obstacle course; but the diagnosis obviously was incorrect when on the following day a knee or elbow was involved similarly. They were victims of rheumatic fever. The soldiers assumed that exercise was responsible for the original incident. This sort of thing happens frequently with children. Should a youngster start limping, the parents may blame an accident or fall; they usually are right because boys and girls are likely to hurt themselves several times a day; but occasionally the limp is caused by arthritis or rheumatic fever which, when mild, may go undetected because junior remembers that he fell or stumbled a few days previously. In case of doubt it is always wise to call the family physician. Along the same line we should not attribute stumbling and toe dragging to clumsiness or laziness.

The individual who limps because of a painful joint walks differently from one who is paralyzed or has a short leg. The foot that hurts is dragged on the ground carefully to avoid injury and the weight of the body is then borne just long enough to permit the sound leg to be swung forward hurriedly. In this way the person hobbles along painfully until he reaches his goal. When one leg is shorter than the other, the body drops slightly when the shorter leg is put on the ground. The opposite hip sticks out more prominently and the knee is kept bent. To maintain balance the body frequently is swung over to the affected side; on standing still the spine is bent to compensate for the tilt in the pelvis.

• — • — •

Those who have recuperated from polio or have weak muscles from other causes also have a special gait. The impaired extremity is thrown forward and almost simultaneously the trunk is moved over to the involved side to balance the center of gravity over the joints. This is necessary because the muscles do not have the strength to hold up the body; the weight must be carried entirely by the skeletal structures. After a stroke, difficulty in walking is common because the muscles on the paralyzed side are more rigid than usual. The leg moves with the body because it is stiff. In propelling the extremity the person swings it in a semi-circle. Both legs are likely to be involved in multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy and lateral sclerosis. The limbs are stiff and weak and to move forward they perform the same arc except that one leg crosses in front of the other. This is known as the "scissors' gait."

Food Poisoning

Mrs. U. writes: What can be done for pork poisoning?

REPLY

If you refer to food poisoning from contaminated pork, the stomach can be washed out via a tube if symptoms appear soon after eating. After several hours have elapsed, it may be possible to eliminate the tainted meat remaining in the system by giving Epsom salts or other purgative, unless diarrhea already exists. On the other hand, once the food is digested, nothing can be done except to wait and see what happens.

Stomach Position

Mrs. R. writes: Does an upside down stomach cause poor appetite in a woman of 70?

REPLY

This is questionable because in all probability the stomach has been "upside down" for a long time. Appetite at 70 may not be good except for breakfast, which is considered the "best meal of the day" by many oldsters.

DON'T BLACKLIST SALT

O. W. T. writes: I have read that the use of salt causes kidney disease, hardening of the arteries, and high blood pressure. Is this true?

REPLY

No. Salt enters the picture only because it is restricted when hypertension is present or heart or kidney trouble leads to a dropsical condition. Blaming these disorders on salt would be the same as saying just because victims of heart disease cannot exercise strenuously that heart disease is caused by exercise.

Charles Wilson Alerts Staff For Wage-Price Control Clamp-Down; New Factories Will Be Tempting Targets For Enemy; House To Be Reapportioned

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Mobilization boss Charles Wilson has ordered his staff to be ready to clamp down price and wage controls within two weeks. He got the nod last week from President Truman who has finally agreed to all-out controls.

Previously the President had gone along with the Federal Reserve Board, which advised against putting the economy in a government strait jacket. The board argued that indirect controls, such as higher taxes and restrictions on consumer and bank credits, would eventually curb inflation. These indirect methods, however, have failed to hold down prices.

At the same time, a shake-up in the mobilization high-command may also accompany the new controls. For example, Wilson makes no secret around his office that he hopes to get rid of Price Administrator Mike Di Salle and Di Salle doesn't try to conceal his distaste for Economic Stabilization Director Alan Valentine. All this backbiting is likely to result in some heads rolling.

Meanwhile, across the Potomac in the Pentagon, the new Munitions Board Chairman John D. Small has been given 90 days to straighten out the mess he inherited. He took over the reins from Hubert Howard after the Munitions Board had failed in its assignment to stockpile strategic materials. However, President Truman still isn't satisfied with the board's progress, and has applied the spurs to the new chairman.

Dissecting Taft

Democrat senators were verbally dissecting Sen. Robert A. (for Alphonso) Taft in the Senate cloakroom the other day.

"Bob has a good mind and always brings up interesting points," defended Illinois' Sen. Paul Douglas.

"But what about his know-it-all atttiude that even gripes the Republicans?" he was asked.

"The truth is," Douglas explained, "the Senator is two people. He is Bob Taft, and he is Alphonso Taft."

Industrial Targets

In the haste to expand war production, the government is paying no attention to dispersal but is throwing up new factories right where the Russians can bomb them easiest. The truth is, 90 per cent of our new plants are being built in industrial areas that are already tempting targets.

Of approximately 80 defense plants now approved for construction, 18 are located in Pennsylvania's industrial heartland. The rest will be built in the production centers of Ohio, Michigan, Alabama, Illinois and New York—with a few scattered plants in Indiana, West Virginia, Kentucky, California, Maryland and Connecticut.

In other words, instead of scattering these factories around the country, the government is concentrating them in big cities such as Pittsburgh, Detroit, Birmingham, Chicago and Los Angeles. This not only makes our defense facilities more vulnerable, but adds to the housing, transportation and educational problems of these overcrowded centers.

Technically, the new plants will not be built by the government but by private companies. However, the government has a powerful say-so through its certification system. This is handled by the National Security Resources Board, which issues certificates of necessity for building defense plants. Only factories that have been certified by the NSRB are eligible for big tax reductions under the Defense Production Act.

Needless to say, this is a powerful lever for keeping the plant owners in line. However, the NSRB, while it has encouraged dispersal, has not enforced it. As a result, the owners are building their new factories right alongside the old.

It may be more costly to build defense plants in remote regions, but it would be safer from enemy air attack, hence a lot cheaper in the long run.

Rival Newsboys

Two rival newsboys, taking sides in the Pearson-McCarthy feud, carried on a shouting match on a busy Washington street corner the other day.

The boy hawking the Washington Times-Herald shouted: "Senator McCarthy accuses Pearson of publishing documents!"

Not to be outdone, the boy selling the Washington Post on the same corner shouted back: "Drew Pearson tells how Senator McCarthy aided Nazi war criminals! Read all about it!"

Shifts In The House

One of the toughest questions facing the 82nd Congress is the reapportionment of the House of Representatives to conform with population shifts of the last census.

It is easy enough to transfer the 14 seats from nine states that gained the least in population to the states that gained the most. However, this won't solve the problem.

Sooner or later Congress must face the fact that the House—the chamber our founding fathers said should be "close" to the people—hasn't grown up with the country. The first House of Representatives (1789-91) had 65 members, or one to approximately 61,500 people. Today the ratio is one congressman to approximately 346,000 people.

To use a more modern comparison, there were about 92,000,000 people in the United States in 1911 when the number of House seats was raised to 435. Today we still have 435 House members, though the population has grown by more than a third.

Smart, young Rep. Frank Chelf of Kentucky did some straight talking on this the other day to President Truman in a plea for his bill to raise House membership from 435 to 450.

"I don't want the House so big that the tail will wag the dog, and my bill doesn't do that, "explained Chelf. "But we've simply got to do something to give the people the democratic representation they deserve and the framers of the Constitution wanted them to have."

Truman promised to "think it over."

NOTE — Under reapportionment, California (which has led the population spurt since the 1940 census) will gain seven House seats, Florida will gain two, and Maryland, Michigan, Texas Virginia and Washington, one each. Pennsylvania will lose three seats; Missouri, New York and Oklahoma, two each; and Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee, one each.

Effects Of Inflation Hold Hardships For "Savers"

By MARK SULLIVAN

PRESIDENT Truman, in his economic message last week, spoke about inflation, the present existence of it and the danger of more. His concluding words were: "This must not happen."

Those words have a sound of firm determination. One must assume that Mr. Truman means them and that inflation will be checked. One step towards stopping inflation has been taken, it is an action of the Federal Reserve Board by which quantity of credit is restrained, including bank credit and credit used in installment selling. This, so far as it goes, is a direct and effective attack upon inflation. In addition, agencies for other steps—controls over prices, wages and the like—have been set up and are beginning to function. Movement toward check of inflation is under way.

Yet Mr. Truman's words "this must not happen," would convey the spirit of firm determination more surely if he had not said the equivalent of them before, at various times. During the early months of his Administration, and also during the Roosevelt one, the spirit of determination was conveyed by a slogan which had almost an official status: "Hold the line against inflation."

But along with that slogan Mr. Truman had a policy. In several formal statements during late 1945 he urged raises of wage rates in industry. The urgings were accompanied by an admonition that the wage raises be "non-inflationary," meaning that they should not be accompanied by increases in prices of goods. This policy of Mr. Truman's was put on the basis of an economic theory, the purpose put forward was to increase the country's purchasing power by increasing wage rates for labor.

The policy prevailed over the slogan. In January, 1946, the Administration, in order to end a strike, brought about a raise in the wage rates of labor in the steel industry, and simultaneously announced an increase of five dollars a ton in the price of steel. With that double action the slogan "Hold the line against inflation" evaporated. There ensued a twin parade of wage raises and price increases which has been a spiral mechanism of inflation which has gone on to this day and which has had especially strong momentum the past few months. This wage-price spiral, coupled with price support of farm crops, composed most of the dynamic mechanism of inflation.

In the part of Mr. Truman's economic message dealing with inflation he included four of its effects which are especially deadly. He said that if inflation continues it would "destroy confidence . . . impair the value of the dollar, dissipate the value of savings, and impose an intolerable burden upon fixed income groups." These effects of inflation bear with especial hardship on one immense class of the people.

In what may be looked upon as the grand divisions of the American economy and society, an immense one and perhaps the most vitally important, is the savers. These include holders of the familiar government savings bonds, holders of life insurance policies or beneficiaries of them, depositors in savings banks, groups who have savings in pension funds, other groups who have various kinds of fixed income securities.

In the act of saving the purpose of these groups is to provide for their future. They save in order that when they are old or retired they shall be able to live upon their savings. This purpose is realized only if the dollars they have put into savings retain approximately the purchasing power they had at the time of saving them; if they buy, ten or twenty years hence, as much goods as they bought when saved.

This expectation and reliance is being threatened or defeated. Persons who have put their saved dollars into savings banks, life insurance, savings bonds or the like, find that their saved dollars, when they come back, have lost a material percentage of their purchasing power. A dollar which, when saved ten years ago, was the equivalent of say three pounds of steak, will today buy hardly one pound, and so as to other forms of food and goods.

The effect of inflation and depreciation of the purchasing power of the dollar upon savers, who in many cases are old or retired, is more cruel than upon other groups. Labor, by reason of organization, is able to gallop along with inflation; to keep up with it by repeated raises in wage rates. Farmers are able to keep up with it by reason of government price support of farm crops. Further than human consideration, savers deserve consideration for their value to the country. If inflation should go to a point at which savers begin to wonder whether saving is worth while, the effect on the country and its economy would be serious.

Relations Of Congress, President Are Improving

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. — Relations between Congress and President Truman are getting better. There's a rift in the clouds and a bit of amicability is beginning to appear.

Apparently President Truman did not mean to be brusque with Congress last week when he said, in effect, he would consult Congress but would do as he pleased about sending troops abroad. He told the reporters that maybe they didn't write the story the way he meant it. They, of course, wrote what they heard him say. Mr. Truman thinks the implications of his words were perhaps misconstrued or ignored.

These misunderstandings will occur. Mr. Truman is really not complaining that the reporting was unsound but that at times things don't sound in print like they sound when he says them. Maybe they ought to have a system of sound effects to cure this so that the exact intonation of voice could be recorded. Maybe the whole press conference should be put on radio and television so that the public —whose business is being discussed —can judge for itself what the inflections of a presidential voice really mean.

As for Congress, there are signs that Senator Taft is softening or clarifying his position, too. He wouldn't object to sending troops to Europe, he says, but wants Congress to spell out some sort of ratio so that America will supply certain divisions and the other nations some divisions in proper proportion.

Anyway, there seems to be a convergence toward agreement. So far as foreign governments are concerned, they can properly derive from these modifications, clarifications, and explanations that the executive and legislative branches of the American government are beginning to see eye to eye on the major things—they are agreed on what the diplomats call the "principle," and there are just some slight details of difference on how the principle shall be applied.

Basically there never was any doubt that, if the President asked Congress for authority to station our troops in Europe as a part of our North Atlantic treaty obligation, he would get such authority by overwhelming vote. The legalists who told him a bad precedent would be created if he asked for such authority were giving Mr. Truman poor advice. The President of the United States can always act of his own initiative in sending troops out of the country if there is danger. He does not need to wait for congressional action. But where there is time, the words of the Constitution would seem to imply that he ask for congressional authority soon after he sends the troops abroad, if not before.

It may be stated also that a declaration which recognizes a state of war with Communist China, if submitted to Congress now, would pass by an overwhelming vote of both houses. Congressional sentiment is almost unanimous on the rejection of the phony "peace" proposal made by the Chinese Communists, and there is complete backing for the Department of State in its efforts to obtain the adoption at the United Nations of a resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor.

Under the American system of free discussion, world policies are praised or criticized, or proposals for amendment are made publicly. Thus every official of the Department of State knows what Congress is thinking about and, if not, members of the congressional committees are free to come in and talk about it or write in or telephone.

What is needed here mostly is to encourage a spirit of cooperation—to instill the feeling at the Department of State that members of Congress have a responsibility to their constituents and also to instill on Capitol Hill the feeling that the Department of State will welcome advice. Having established the right kind of relationship between the two branches of government, it then becomes essential for Congress to recognize that under the Constitution the conduct of foreign relations is an executive function and that the President and Secretary of State must make the final decisions and be held accountable for them to the country.

As one looks back on the somewhat clumsy performances of the last few days, one wonders how much it is all due to the deep-seated partisanship of the President himself, which distrusts the opposition party, and conversely to the distrust which the opposition party has with respect to Mr. Truman and his Secretary of State.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

What Is War?

BUSHROD WASHINGTON, a nephew of our first president and an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, in Bas V. Tingy, defined war as follows:

"It may, I believe, be safely laid down, that every contention by force, between two nations, in external matters, under the authority of their respective governments, is not only war, but public war."

Professor John Bassett Moore, the greatest American authority on international law, said:

"Much confusion may be avoided by bearing in mind the fact that by the term war is meant not the mere employment of force, but the existence of the legal condition of things in which rights are or may be prosecuted by force. . ."

Bynkershoek, commenting on Grotius, said:

"War is a contest between independent parties by way of force or deceit, for the purpose of pursuing their right."

The term "right" here must be interpreted as will, desire, ambition, or perhaps what a side believes either to be correct or its rights.

In the case of the "resolution," the Federal Court of Appeals held:

"A perfect war is that which destroys the national peace and tranquillity, and lays the foundation of every possible act of hostility; the imperfect war is that which does not entirely destroy the public tranquillity, but interrupts it only in some particulars, as in the case of reprisals."

Instead of "perfect" and "imperfect war," the terms "general" and "limited" war have often been used. Our present war with Soviet China is a limited war; it is for this reason that General MacArthur was forbidden to bomb the Yalu River reservoirs. Our war with Soviet Russia, commencing in 1945, has been called a 'cold war" because it was a war limited to deceits rather than involving force.

These various definitions of war are here given because of the very great confusion which exists in many minds as to whether this country is now at war. It is often suggested that our troops are in Korea on a police action ordered by the United Nations. That might have been true up to November 6, when the presence of Soviet China in the war was acknowledged.

Soviet China and Soviet Russia have regarded the United States as the aggressor in the Korean war; whereas the United States has regarded Soviet China as the aggressor and desires that the United Nations so declare it.

Karl Von Clausewitz, the philosopher of war, defines war as follows:

". . . War is nothing but a duel on a larger scale. If we would combine into one conception the countless separate duels of which it consists, we would do well to think of two wrestlers. Each tries by physical force to compel the other to do his will; his immediate object is to overthrow his adversary and thereby make him incapable of any further resistance."

The important word in all this is "will." War exists to break the will of a nation; to subdue it; to destroy it; to bring it to heel.

Clausewitz further says:

". . .Force, that is to say, physical force . . . Is thus the means; to impose our will upon the enemy is the object. To achieve this object with certainty we must disarm the enemy, and this disarming is by definition the proper aim of military action. . ."

It is possible to disarm a nation by strikes, mutinies, subsidizing civil war. It is also possible to achieve this end by infiltration in government, by espionage, by the spread of false rumors, slogans and ideas, by weakening resistance through the propagation of great lies. All these have been employed with a measure of success.

Perhaps one of the most effective non-military weapons is confusing of the issue by extraneous matters. For instance, in the present stage of our war with Soviet China, the fear of Great Britain and France is that this is a Russian stratagem to divert our resources from Europe. Therefore, they minimize the nature of our Asiatic problems in order to emphasize the importance of their European problems. This has caused division in our country.

War itself ignores all these factors, for it moves along killing people and establishing constantly new situations. Withdrawal means defeat immediately; continuance may mean defeat or victory eventually. Therefore, when a nation is engaged in war, its decisions, uncertainties and imponderables are often confusing, particularly when a government, to hide error, fails to be truthful.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19.—(INS)—Romance, Darryl Zanuck believes, pays off in dollars and cents at the box office providing the motion picture has color, is creditable and, of course, has good acting.

That's why, he tells me, he is again teaming Debra Paget and Louis Jourdan in "Annie Of The Indies," a romantic story about a lady pirate. Debra and Louis were together in "Bird Of Paradise" which is really romance with a capital R. Now, Debra, whom I chose as the most promising young actress, will be starred with Jourdan who gets a really lusty pirate role.

Here's a tip to Silvano Mangano, Italian star of "Bitter Rice," who wants to work for Zanuck. If she'll make a test and it meets with the approval of Director Jacques Tourneur and George Jessel, the producer, she might get herself a job with Debra and Louis.

• — • — •

When I was in Chicago a week ago, I drove past the old Essanay Studios on Argyle Street. It is now being rented to an independent producer.

I telephoned George K. Spoor, former head of Essanay, who still lives on Argyle Street, and he told me that Gloria Swanson always telephones him when she comes through Chicago.

What memories that old street brought back. The house where Wallace Beery once lived, close to the studio; the apartment which housed Francis X. Bushman, his wife, and five children.

Mr. Spoor, now close to 80 years old, asked me why I didn't go into the studio. Somehow, I couldn't do it. It didn't seem like the place where I worked so many years ago.

• — • — •

Hugo Haas, who made "Pick Up" at a cost of $85,000 and just finished "The Bridge" at a cost of $90,000, is already considering his next movie.

This time he'll do a comedy, "The Man Next Door." Haas, who always stars in his own pictures, has cast only himself thus far. Beverly Nichols, blonde beauty, has been in his other two pictures which are heavily dramatic, but she may not be in "The Man Next Door," which is not exactly her cup of tea.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Darryl Zanuck will be a grandpop any edition. His daughter, Darrylin, and her young husband, Robert Jacks, are awaiting the blessed event. Neither Virginia nor Darryl will go to New York for the film critic's ward until after the arrival of the baby.

Garwood Van flew in from Palm Springs where he is playing at the Chi-Chi to see Marie Wilson. Apparently Gar isn't going to let Allan Nixon take up too much of Marie's time.

Ruth Roman and her bridegroom, Mortimer Hall, leave for New York to meet his family and then go on to the Bahamas for a belated honeymoon. That is they'll go as soon as Ruth completes her current picture at Warners.

Well, listen to this—my flower-eating friend, Piper Laurie, was at the Cafe Gala with Vic Damone having a time. Well, why not? Both of them are free and 21.

Errol Flynn must receive daily treatment for two months and stay in bed during that time for at least a half day. So this will cancel his plans to make an independent movie in Ireland.

There are two schools of thought. One side is betting that Arlene Dahl and Lex Barker will never marry, and the other is betting they'll marry sooner than they'll admit. Take your choice—I'm neutral.

Mrs. Joe Mankiewicz, whose stage name is Rose Stradna, will return to the New York stage in the fall.

That's all today. See you Monday.

The ground hog, or woodchuck, which traditionally wakes from winter sleep and emerges from its burrow on February 2 to forecast an early or late spring, is a species of marmot, the National Geographic Society says. It is common in the eastern United States and Canada from sea level to near the tops of the highest mountains.

Has the winter taken its toll of your complexion? Use this special facial to restore your beauty!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

I WANT to tell you about a very special facial that will give you a June-in-January complexion in very short order!

You are a mighty unsual person, even though you usually have an ever-so-smooth and young-looking complexion, if at this time of year your face doesn't become dry, rough and irritated. Incipient lines and crow's feet suddenly appear in an alarming way.

These distressing changes in the facial skin are simply the result of mid-winter dehydration. They can be easily counteracted, if you will just give yourself this special facial twice each week until your skin returns to normal.

First, assemble all the necessary equipment: Turkish towel, hot water, a lubricating oil, pan, ordinary table salt, cup, a light skin freshener, an inch-thick pad of absorbant cotton (large enough to cover your entire face and neck) and a bowl of ice cubes.

Put the container of oil with cap on into a pan of very hot water, so that it will be warm when you are ready to use it. Place the cotton in the bottom of your bowl and cover it with the ice cubes and five tablespoons of the skin freshener.

Now cleanse your face with your favorite cleanser, being extra careful not to cause the slightest irritation. Then press the turkish towel, wrung out in hot water, to your face and neck until your facial muscles are thoroughly relaxed.

Follow this with a generous application of your lubricating oil. When every inch of your skin is covered, briskly spank (don't pull) your skin for two minutes or until it glows. Remove the excess oil with tissue.

Now, put half a teaspoon of salt into a cup and add one-quarter of a cup of the lubricating oil. Smooth

Since December 16 when they dropped an overtime battle in Altoona, 68-64, the West Virginians, paced by Eddie Sterling, have marked up seven consecutive wins, turning back every club in the league at least once and Beaver Falls and Cumberland twice.

The Blues won games in the following order: Cumberland 81-68, Erie 88-66, Beaver Falls 80-66, Cumberland 98-76, Beaver Falls 84-68, Wheeling 102-72 and Altoona 95-88.

Three field goals by Billy Robertson after two free throws by Tommy Kelly had tied the score at 47-47, enabled Central High School to upset Allegany High School in a W.M.I. League contest last night on the Lonaconing court before a packed house. The score was 54-51.

The setback knocked Allegany out of the undefeated class in the county circuit and Fort Hill took over sole possession of first place by bagging its third straight win over Beall High at Frostburg, 68-53. Undefeated Fort Hill has won nine contests this season.

In the third league game of the night, Barton High defeated Bruce of Westernport in Barton by the score of 43 to 38.

At Lonaconing, Central led AHS by 14 points at intermission, 36-32. Then the Campers outscored the Tigers 26 to 4 in the third stanza to forge ahead at 48-40. Central outpointed AHS 14 to 3 in the final quarter to sew up the game.

Junior Eversole was the game's high scorer with 20 points. Kenny Burt headed CHS with 17 points. McKenzie and Johnson played stellar floor games for the Orange and Black. Long of Allegany was ejected on personal fouls in the 4th period.

Four Players Ejected

Four players were banished in the Fort Hill-Beall contest in the Mountain City. Workman and Arnone of Beall were ejected as well as Landis and Wilson of Fort Hill.

Fort Hill meshed 24 of 55 shots from the field while Beall sank 20 of 50. Lynn Beightol was Fort Hill's top scorer with 16 points while Cage, McGregor and Wilson had 14, 13 and 12, respectively. Arnone and Blank with 13 and 12 paced Beall.

Fort Hill's Jaycees defeated Beall in the prelim, 28-22.

Stage Rousing Finish

Bruce put on a whirlwind finish but was unable to catch Coach Johnny Thomas's Barton Braves in the final quarter at Barton.

Barton held a 19 point lead going into the last period (39-20) and was outscored 18 to 4 in the last eight minutes but finished five points in the fore at the final whistle.

Bill Kirk and Tim Clark were Barton's best bets. Reeves and Berry were outstanding for Bruce.

Bert Bell Gets Salary Increase From Grid Loop

Commissioner's Pay Hiked To $40,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—The National Football League today handed Commissioner Bert Bell a $10,000 yearly raise, making his annual salary $40,000 for the remainder of his eight year term.

The "vote of confidence" was given Bell by the club owners after they finished the annual player draft in which the champion Cleveland Browns lead the drawing of 362 collegians with 36 picks.

Bell's salary increase was announced by owner George Preston Marshall of the Washington Redskins. The pro grid chiefs' $40,000 salary leaves him $25,000 below the $65,000 Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler receives. However, the major baseball leagues have refused to renew Chandler's contract which ends May, 1952.

The move apparently was an attempt to "show up" organized baseball. Marshall had sharply criticized the refusal of baseball owners to renew Chandler's contract at their recent winter meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The pro football bosses, after completing the player draft and voting Bell's raise, tackled such other problems as possible realignment of the loop's American and National divisions, and drawing up a 1951 playing schedule.

STADIUM INN'S 1st HALF CHAMPIONS—Stadium Inn of Frostburg captured the first half championship of the Men's National Shuffleboard League of Allegany County on Thursday night by winning three games from the Cumberland Knights of Columbus, defending champions. The Frostburg team finished six games out in front with a 32-7 record. Frostburg American Legion and Cumberland K. of C. tied for runner-up honors. The 2nd half race gets under way next Thursday. Members of the Stadium Inn team pictured above, left to right, are: Max Stangle, Bill Day, Tom Stewart, Dewey Porter, Charles Rice, Charles Minnicks, Tom Gracie and Earl Minnicks.

Bert Bell Gets Salary Increase From Grid Loop

Commissioner's Pay Hiked To $40,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—The National Football League today handed Commissioner Bert Bell a $10,000 yearly raise, making his annual salary $40,000 for the remainder of his eight year term.

The "vote of confidence" was given Bell by the club owners after they finished the annual player draft in which the champion Cleveland Browns lead the drawing of 362 collegians with 36 picks.

Bell's salary increase was announced by owner George Preston Marshall of the Washington Redskins. The pro grid chiefs' $40,000 salary leaves him $25,000 below the $65,000 Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler receives. However, the major baseball leagues have refused to renew Chandler's contract which ends May, 1952.

The move apparently was an attempt to "show up" organized baseball. Marshall had sharply criticized the refusal of baseball owners to renew Chandler's contract at their recent winter meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The pro football bosses, after completing the player draft and voting Bell's raise, tackled such other problems as possible realignment of the loop's American and National divisions, and drawing up a 1951 playing schedule.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Guidebook For Dialogue Writers

AFTER examining the drama again—Broadway, movies, radio, television—I've decided to issue the Crosby Pocket Handbook which will come out from time to time and will settle barroom arguments among dialogue writers.

John Crosby

You get a couple dialogue writers they're discussing a scene where the girl realizes she's got cancer her husband is saying "Joanna, you look like a ghost. What . . .?" The correct line for her, of course, "I'm tired — just tired — that's all." That's now official. Any deviation, like deviations from any ceremony, will be considered blasphemous and the penalty therefore will be court-martial or, at the very least, the tab on the next drink.

• — • — •

Dialogue-writing has become a matter as ceremonious as Japanese drama and we had better codify these things so that everyone knows what to expect in given situations. Following are the proper lines for given situations. I've omitted some of the situations since we all know them well:

"Doctor, you've got to pull her through. You've got to. She's all I have."

"Son—. . . you'd better get some rest."

Then there's that tense moment in the detective drama. Here, depending on circumstances and the way the plot is shaping up, there are two opposite ways of handling the problem:

a) "Tell him, Joe! Tell him! If you won't say where you were at the hours of the murder, I will!"

"Maisie, you don't know what you're saying!"

"Inspector—Joe was with me. In my—boudoir."

Or there's the other side of the coin.

"I was with you all evening! You know I was, Maisie! I was with you. Go on! Tell 'em!"

"I never saw this man before in my life."

The scene where the girl is lost, heartbroken and broke in the bus station and Cary Grant happens through and helps her out: "Why are you—a stranger—doing all this for me?"

• — • — •

The problems of maternity, paternity and what might be described as the You - Were - Almost - My - Daughter gambit have to be treated fairly extensively.

"Jennifer, twenty years ago I loved a woman. She never knew. I never told her. Because—well, that woman was your mother. And it was your father that she loved. So I went away—it doesn't matter where. But tonight she lives again—in all her loveliness—in you, my child. And that is why—but this is a night for youth and gaiety and love. Back to the ball with you both! I will join you—later—later—later."

The absent or deceased parent gambit:

a) "How proud your mother would have been to see you in her graduation dress."

b) "Bill, you can't quit! You've got to keep fighting this thing. Mother would have wanted it that way."

c) "And that man was—your father."

Bereavement or imminent bereavement? Well, naturally, we have to cover that.

"Oh, God, I'm just a little boy seven years old and maybe I've been bad but, God, don't let my dog Rover die. I'll be a good boy, God. Thank you, God. Goodbye, God. Amen."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

ODDS OF 10 TO 1 CRAZY

NO HORSE-PLAYER would think of offering 10 to 1 odds on a nag which figured to have only about an even chance to win a race. Yet those crazy odds are offered every once in a while at the bridge table. One frequent situation where you see that done is the double of an opposing contract by someone who expects to beat it about a trick, whereas the making of the contract would give the opponent a game if it was doubled but not if it was not doubled.

	♠ J 8 7 4 2 ♥ 10 6 3 ♦ 5 ♣ Q J 10 9
♠ 10 6 3 ♥ A 9 8 7 2 ♦ K Q J 6 4 ♣ None	N W E S	♠ A K Q 9 5 ♥ J 4 ♦ 10 9 ♣ K 7 4 3
	♠ None ♥ K Q 5 ♦ A 8 7 3 2 ♣ A 8 6 5 2

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
Dbl	Pass	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	Pass	Dbl

Setting that contract one trick would have given East and West 50 points if it was not doubled, 100 if it was doubled. Thus, the double increased the chance of gain by exactly 50 points, if a one-trick set was in view.

Against the 50 points chance for gain, the chance for loss was terrific. It would include the value of a game, roughly 300 points or so, plus the doubled value of the tricks, which would be increased by 60, plus the 50 points for making a doubled contract, plus the danger of another 100 points if an extra trick was made.

As it turned out, all of that happened. South made an extra trick, so that his gain from the double was roughly 490 points, whereas his loss if beaten a trick would have been increased only 50 by the double. That is just about 10 to 1 odds.

In the play, South lost only three tricks following the spade 10 lead. East got one by overruffing the club 10 with the K on a diamond lead, a second trick went to the heart A and the third was a diamond trick after the dummy's trumps were gone.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Guidebook For Dialogue Writers

AFTER examining the drama again—Broadway, movies, radio, television—I've decided to issue the Crosby Pocket Handbook which will come out from time to time and will settle barroom arguments among dialogue writers.

John Crosby

You get a couple dialogue writers they're discussing a scene where the girl realizes she's got cancer her husband is saying "Joanna, you look like a ghost. What . . .?" The correct line for her, of course, "I'm tired — just tired — that's all." That's now official. Any deviation, like deviations from any ceremony, will be considered blasphemous and the penalty therefore will be court-martial or, at the very least, the tab on the next drink.

• — • — •

Dialogue-writing has become a matter as ceremonious as Japanese drama and we had better codify these things so that everyone knows what to expect in given situations. Following are the proper lines for given situations. I've omitted some of the situations since we all know them well:

"Doctor, you've got to pull her through. You've got to. She's all I have."

"Son—. . . you'd better get some rest."

Then there's that tense moment in the detective drama. Here, depending on circumstances and the way the plot is shaping up, there are two opposite ways of handling the problem:

a) "Tell him, Joe! Tell him! If you won't say where you were at the hours of the murder, I will!"

"Maisie, you don't know what you're saying!"

"Inspector—Joe was with me. In my—boudoir."

Or there's the other side of the coin.

"I was with you all evening! You know I was, Maisie! I was with you. Go on! Tell 'em!"

"I never saw this man before in my life."

The scene where the girl is lost, heartbroken and broke in the bus station and Cary Grant happens through and helps her out: "Why are you—a stranger—doing all this for me?"

• — • — •

The problems of maternity, paternity and what might be described as the You - Were - Almost - My - Daughter gambit have to be treated fairly extensively.

"Jennifer, twenty years ago I loved a woman. She never knew. I never told her. Because—well, that woman was your mother. And it was your father that she loved. So I went away—it doesn't matter where. But tonight she lives again—in all her loveliness—in you, my child. And that is why—but this is a night for youth and gaiety and love. Back to the ball with you both! I will join you—later—later—later."

The absent or deceased parent gambit:

a) "How proud your mother would have been to see you in her graduation dress."

b) "Bill, you can't quit! You've got to keep fighting this thing. Mother would have wanted it that way."

c) "And that man was—your father."

Bereavement or imminent bereavement? Well, naturally, we have to cover that.

"Oh, God, I'm just a little boy seven years old and maybe I've been bad but, God, don't let my dog Rover die. I'll be a good boy, God. Thank you, God. Goodbye, God. Amen."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

ODDS OF 10 TO 1 CRAZY

NO HORSE-PLAYER would think of offering 10 to 1 odds on a nag which figured to have only about an even chance to win a race. Yet those crazy odds are offered every once in a while at the bridge table. One frequent situation where you see that done is the double of an opposing contract by someone who expects to beat it about a trick, whereas the making of the contract would give the opponent a game if it was doubled but not if it was not doubled.

	♠ J 8 7 4 2 ♥ 10 6 3 ♦ 5 ♣ Q J 10 9
♠ 10 6 3 ♥ A 9 8 7 2 ♦ K Q J 6 4 ♣ None	N W E S	♠ A K Q 9 5 ♥ J 4 ♦ 10 9 ♣ K 7 4 3
	♠ None ♥ K Q 5 ♦ A 8 7 3 2 ♣ A 8 6 5 2

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
Dbl	Pass	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	Pass	Dbl

Setting that contract one trick would have given East and West 50 points if it was not doubled, 100 if it was doubled. Thus, the double increased the chance of gain by exactly 50 points, if a one-trick set was in view.

Against the 50 points chance for gain, the chance for loss was terrific. It would include the value of a game, roughly 300 points or so, plus the doubled value of the tricks, which would be increased by 60, plus the 50 points for making a doubled contract, plus the danger of another 100 points if an extra trick was made.

As it turned out, all of that happened. South made an extra trick, so that his gain from the double was roughly 490 points, whereas his loss if beaten a trick would have been increased only 50 by the double. That is just about 10 to 1 odds.

In the play, South lost only three tricks following the spade 10 lead. East got one by overruffing the club 10 with the K on a diamond lead, a second trick went to the heart A and the third was a diamond trick after the dummy's trumps were gone.

Value Set On Thomas Luke Estate

The estate left by the late Thomas Luke, chairman of the board of directors of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, with plants at Luke and in other sections of the country, was appraised at $1,521,825, gross value, and $1,411,503, net in a report filed here by the New York State Transfer Tax Department. Stocks and bonds amounted to $1,376,623, chiefly in the paper company.

The bulk of the estate goes to a number of relatives.

Gather up your dripping, icy cotton and, learning over the basin, press it to your face and neck until your skin fairly tingles with new and firmer life. Press the excess water out of your cotton, lie down, and cover your face with the cotton for ten minutes.

When you get up, what a pleasant surprise your mirror will have for you!

Moderate Whiff Of Selling Blows Market Prices Down

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP) — A moderate whiff of selling today in the stock market was enough to blow prices down.

In the final phases of trading the best portion of early gains faded away and left the list sagging.

Losses ran to more than a dollar a share at the close, and a minority of gains at best came to better than a dollar a share.

The day started with a certain amount of firmness in prices, but this soon gave way to a general easing.

Then there developed a sort of rolling advance with attention shifting rapidly from one group to another.

Air lines started it off, helped along no doubt by reports that traffic so far this year is highly satisfactory.

The rails took it up from there but were unable to make much progress. Nickel Plate ran up better than six points at one time and closed up 5 at 202½, back again over the magic double century mark.

Automobiles took the spotlight with Chrysler the best performer pricewise, up 1⅛ at 75⅜, although Packard was second most active up ⅜ at 5.

Steels made a brief show but ended unchanged to fractions higher.

Among the last to come into the act were the motion pictures.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 10 cents to $92.80. The industrial component was off 40 cents while rails and utilities were unchanged.

Volume came to 3,160,000 shares as compared with yesterday's bulging 3,490,000 shares.

Bank Balance For County Continues At A High Level

The county treasurer's report for the last three months of 1950 presented to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday morning showed that the county's bank balance continues at a high level.

The report, prepared by Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, auditor, shows that the county had $1,298,092.36 in the bank as of December 31.

The cash balance on September 30 was $1,847,140.46. The drop is attributed to the maintaining of the regular schedule of disbursements.

Receipts for the last quarter of 1950 were $2,446,737.64 while disbursements were $1,148,645.28.

The county also has $139,062.55 in taxes outstanding. The major items in this category are $74,154.59 in taxes from District 1, W. A. Strother, tax collector, for 1950; $20,298.94 for District 2 at Frostburg in 1950 taxes, and $19,132.37 for District 1 taxes outstanding from 1949.

The major receipts during the quarter were: $300,000, from U. S. Treasury notes, redeemed; $53,361.51 from the state horse racing revenue; $52,470.80, state motor vehicle and gasoline tax; $75,868.40, Strother, for 1950 taxes.

The major disbursements during the quarter were $400,000, money from the 1948 school bond issue turned over to the Board of Education for Mt. Savage School work; $254,250.20 to schools; $116,000, retirement of bonded indebtedness; public welfare, $64,736.64.

Medical Care Given 4,368 Persons In Allegany County

Members of the Medical Care Committee for Allegany County met with Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, to review the program and to hear a report on the cost and total number of persons receiving aid.

The session, held at the Health Department office in the Public Safety Building Thursday revealed that 4,368 persons received medical care during July 1, 1950 to December 1, 1950. A person receiving treatment more than once is counted each time.

The number of persons on the rolls during the past six months has averaged between 800 and 900, a big drop from the total during April, May and June of last year.

Total expenditure for the year ending July 1, 1950 was $85,020.32 in Allegany County, with $26,606.91 of the amount being for drugs and other medicines.

From July 1, 1950 to November 1, 1950 the cost was $26,211.61 with pharmacy bills totaling $11,196.54. Dr. Frantz explained that the actual bills submitted by doctors in the county totaled about $4,000 more than that paid out. He said that the state set a certain sum which they would receive and that funds for this purpose would not cover the bills submitted. In other words, the doctors of this county gave $4,000 worth of service at no cost to the county or state, he pointed out.

During the year ending July 1, 1950 there were 10,674 persons who received aid under the program in this county.

Gather up your dripping, icy cotton and, learning over the basin, press it to your face and neck until your skin fairly tingles with new and firmer life. Press the excess water out of your cotton, lie down, and cover your face with the cotton for ten minutes.

When you get up, what a pleasant surprise your mirror will have for you!

Moderate Whiff Of Selling Blows Market Prices Down

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP) — A moderate whiff of selling today in the stock market was enough to blow prices down.

In the final phases of trading the best portion of early gains faded away and left the list sagging.

Losses ran to more than a dollar a share at the close, and a minority of gains at best came to better than a dollar a share.

The day started with a certain amount of firmness in prices, but this soon gave way to a general easing.

Then there developed a sort of rolling advance with attention shifting rapidly from one group to another.

Air lines started it off, helped along no doubt by reports that traffic so far this year is highly satisfactory.

The rails took it up from there but were unable to make much progress. Nickel Plate ran up better than six points at one time and closed up 5 at 202½, back again over the magic double century mark.

Automobiles took the spotlight with Chrysler the best performer pricewise, up 1⅛ at 75⅜, although Packard was second most active up ⅝ at 5.

Steels made a brief show but ended unchanged to fractions higher.

Among the last to come into the act were the motion pictures.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 10 cents to $92.80. The industrial component was off 40 cents while rails and utilities were unchanged.

Volume came to 3,160,000 shares as compared with yesterday's bulging 3,490,000 shares.

Bank Balance For County Continues At A High Level

The county treasurer's report for the last three months of 1950 presented to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday morning showed that the county's bank balance continues at a high level.

The report, prepared by Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, auditor, shows that the county had $1,298,092.36 in the bank as of December 31.

The cash balance on September 30 was $1,847,140.46. The drop is attributed to the maintaining of the regular schedule of disbursements.

Receipts for the last quarter of 1950 were $2,446,737.64 while disbursements were $1,148,645.28.

The county also has $139,062.55 in taxes outstanding. The major items in this category are $74,154.59 in taxes from District 1, W. A. Strother, tax collector, for 1950; $20,298.94 for District 2 at Frostburg in 1950 taxes, and $19,132.37 for District 1 taxes outstanding from 1949.

The major receipts during the quarter were: $300,000, from U. S. Treasury notes, redeemed; $53,361.51 from the state horse racing revenue; $52,470.80, state motor vehicle and gasoline tax; $75,868.40, Strother, for 1950 taxes.

The major disbursements during the quarter were $400,000, money from the 1948 school bond issue turned over to the Board of Education for Mt. Savage School work; $254,250.20 to schools; $116,000, retirement of bonded indebtedness; public welfare, $64,736.64.

Medical Care Given 4,368 Persons In Allegany County

Members of the Medical Care Committee for Allegany County met with Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, to review the program and to hear a report on the cost and total number of persons receiving aid.

The session, held at the Health Department office in the Public Safety Building Thursday revealed that 4,368 persons received medical care during July 1, 1950 to December 1, 1950. A person receiving treatment more than once is counted each time.

The number of persons on the rolls during the past six months has averaged between 800 and 900, a big drop from the total during April, May and June of last year.

Total expenditure for the year ending July 1, 1950 was $85,020.32 in Allegany County, with $26,606.91 of the amount being for drugs and other medicines.

From July 1, 1950 to November 1, 1950 the cost was $26,211.61 with pharmacy bills totaling $11,196.54. Dr. Frantz explained that the actual bills submitted by doctors in the county totaled about $4,000 more than that paid out. He said that the state set a certain sum which they would receive and that funds for this purpose would not cover the bills submitted. In other words, the doctors of this county gave $4,000 worth of service at no cost to the county or state, he pointed out.

During the year ending July 1, 1950 there were 10,674 persons who received aid under the program in this county.

Use Of Diesels To Be Increased In This Area

Work On New Shops Nears Completion

Use of diesel power will be maintained by the B. and O. Railroad on runs from Cumberland to Grafton and Parkersburg and return, C. T. Williams, superintendent of the local B. and O. yard said yesterday.

Williams said the shop facilities to care for and refuel diesel engines are now under construction and should be completed by February 15.

This is in line with an announcement made by a company official in Fairmont, W. Va., that use of diesel power on all through and fast freight trains in and out of Fairmont on the B. and O. is anticipated in the immediate future.

He added that possibly within the next few weeks all movement of such freight traffic from Fairmont to Keyser, Grafton to Keyser and on a sub-division to Parkersburg would be by diesel.

The same thing, the official said, soon will apply on the Fairmont-Benwood runs via Brooklyn Junction. Practically all freight from Fairmont on the Pittsburgh division to and from Connellsville, Pa., now is diesel-moved.

Twelve diesel units soon will be available for the Fairmont-Benwood run, and 56 for the Fairmont-Keyser, Grafton-Keyser and Grafton-Parkersburg trips, it was explained.

TWUA Asks Cost Of Living Boost In Rayon Field

A request for a voluntary reopening of contracts to provide cost-of-living wage adjustments has been forwarded to the rayon and synthetic yarn manufacturing industry by the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), it was announced in New York yesterday by Herbert W. Payne, the union's synthetic yarn director.

Payne said TWUA's proposal, on behalf of approximately 38,000 workers under union contract is intended to protect workers against increases in the cost of living which have already taken place, and those predicted for the future.

The union proposes, Payne said, that contracts be amended to provide quarterly wage adjustments "plus or minus one cent an hour for each 1.14 points change in the consumers price index of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics." Such adjustments would start with a "lump-sum" settlement at the time of conclusion of negotiations, based on the rise in the index since July 15, 1950.

Payne said TWUA recognizes that the present contract does not permit a reopening at this time but "economic conditions have changed so sharply that the union no longer can remain quiet while its members suffer constant and growing reductions in their living standards in a period when the industry is prospering as never before."

He pointed to figures published by three leading firms in the industry which show that while sales have risen almost 50 per cent, profits before taxes, have increased 186 per cent for the third quarter of 1950 over the same quarter in 1949. At the same time, workers' productivity has risen steadily, he said.

Two Cases Tried In Circuit Court

Two appeal cases were tried yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court with Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris presiding.

John A. Snyder was found guilty by a jury of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and fined $150 and costs by Judge Harris. Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti had fined Snyder $100 plus costs in Trial Magistrate's Court.

In a second case, sentence was deferred and the defendant was remanded to County Jail after Judge Harris found Martin McKenzie guilty on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge. McKenzie had appealed a sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction given him by Magistrate James P. Kenney of Frostburg.

Smoke Control Program Termed Health Crusade

Hitchcock Reports On Progress Here

Smoke abatement is part of a crusade for health and the cost of the program will be repaid in better health of the community, George B. Hitchock, smoke abatement engineer for the City of Cumberland, declared yesterday.

His report on the success of the program here was presented at a luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in Central YMCA.

Smoke violations, which averaged 7.29 each 100 observations during 1949, dropped to .42 per hundred last year, Hitchcock said. The record betters that made in Columbus, Ohio, which had 7.25 in 1949 and one per 100 last year.

The virtually complete dieselization of the Cumberland yards, which will be finished this spring, will further decrease smoke violations and cause a marked drop in dustfall, he stated.

So far, Hitchcock said, the program has centered on the railroads and large industrial plants. The 1951 schedule calls for spreading the program to smaller industries here.

The 1,338 observations on the B. and O. here in 1949 disclosed 748 partial observations and 22 bad. Last year, with 3,122 observations, only 382 partial and 13 bad violations were noted. Full cooperation of railroad officials at terminal meetings, he added, has proved highly successful.

Dustfall in Cumberland in 1949 averaged 28.46 tons per square mile with the 1950 average up to 31.24.

Hitchcock said the yard dieselization program will drop the average back to below the 1949 figure, which reflected a lower employment factor in the city. He attributed part of the high dustfall to last February, when large quantities of poor coal were used due to a coal shortage.

Cumberland is about in the middle bracket among the some 200 cities which have smoke abatement programs.

He said that in 1949, Pittsburgh's dustfall averaged 51.5 tons; Chicago, 33.94; Cumberland, 28.46; Cincinnati 27.84, and Milwaukee, 36.8.

Some improvement is needed, he reported, but much progress has been made.

There is a growing body of data, Hitchcock said, to prove the connection between air pollution and cancer in Cumberland, and work on the study is being continued.

Collects Samples Of Sewage

J. B. Dowling, state health department sanitarian, is seen collecting for analysis a sample of raw sewage draining upon McMullen Highway near Fairgo. He said the State Roads Commission and the Health Department have inaugurated an intensive drive to improve health conditions along the some 150 miles of primary roads in this county. Dowling said the unwholesome condition generally results from the inadequacy of septic tanks.

Rubber Output Is Slashed By Government

Reduction Order May Effect Local Plant

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The government tonight slashed about 7,650 tons off the amount of synthetic rubber that will be available to make tires and other products for civilians this month.

Officials said the cut probably will mean that many manufacturers of rubber products will have to work fewer days than they had planned during January.

The National Production Authority announced that civilian allocations of general purpose synthetic rubber, known as GRS, are being cut 17 per cent in January.

Such allocations had been expected previously to total about 45,000 tons for the month.

The affected type of synthetic rubber is a substitute for crude rubber and is used in making tires, belting, hose and many other products.

Tire manufacturers are required to use a fixed percentage of such rubber in order to conserve the supply of natural rubber for defense purposes.

In passenger car tires, a fixed percentage is required for different types of tires. The NPA said that synthetic production for January is falling below expectations because of mechanical difficulties and bad weather encountered during the reopening of government-owned synthetic rubber plants.

The NPA said no early shortage of tires is expected to result from the synthetic cut. Tire production recently had been high, officials explained.

Edmund S. Burke, president of the local Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, said last night the plant would make no changes in its present four-day working week until the directive has been received here by company officials.

"It probably will have some effect on us," he stated.

State Agencies Seek Check On Open Sewage Conditions

Highways Polluted From Septic Tanks

The stepping up of a State Roads Commission and Health Department program to curb the dumping of sewage upon highways of Allegany County was announced yesterday by J. B. Dowling, state health department sanitarian.

Results of a survey this week of all primary roads by Dowling and George B. Hale, resident maintanance engineer for the SRC, showed widespread violations of laws regarding health conditions on the highways.

In many cases, Dowling said, raw sewage was found running down the bank and upon the highways like hillside springs.

Hale said the maintenance problem caused when such sewage pours upon the roads and freezes is costly from a monetary standpoint, to say nothing of the health hazard.

In cold weather, SRC officials said, the sewage freezes and creates dangerous icy spots which must be cindered. After the weather warms, the excretia dries up and is blown everywhere to become a serious health hazard.

Dowling said parts of McMullen Highway are the worst offenders, but said conditions existing along the road at Fairgo must be multiplied a hundredfold to get a true picture.

The Health Department is now investigating between 20 and 25 complaints of sewage conditions, Dowling said.

The situation will be corrected, Dowling said, as adequate septic tanks are provided.

In Baltimore, a temperature of 68 degrees was said to be the highest temperature ever recorded on a January 19. The previous record, one degree lower, was set on January 19, 1929.

Col. Shreve To Inspect Reserve Corps Armory

Approximately 250 area reservists are expected to attend the open house and dedicatory service for the opening of the new Second Army Organized Reserve Corps armory on the third floor of the Footer building, corner of Howard and South Mechanic Streets, Tuesday.

Col. Arthur L. Shreve, chief of the Maryland Military district, will inspect the new armory Tuesday and will speak at the luncheon-meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club at Central YMCA. Col. Shreve originally planned to attend the dinner for the dedication at 6 p. m. at Ali Ghan Shrine Club and later speak at a meeting of the six area reserve units here at 8 p. m. in the new armory but will be unable to remain here due to other military commitments. Col. Donald McGrayne, senior army instructor of the Maryland Military District, will be guest speaker at the affair.

Col. Shreve, a native of Baltimore, attended Gilman County School and Baltimore Polytechnic prior to entering the service with the 110th Field Artillery at the outbreak of World War I. He later served as a combat pilot in France and was appointed second lieutenant in the regular army in September, 1920.

The Baltimorean served on the staff of the Commanding General, South Luzon, in the Philippines when World War II broke out. He was captured by the Japanese at the fall of Bataan, April 9, 1942, and was a prisoner until liberated by the Seventh Army, September 8, 1945.

Col. Shreve holds Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, army commendation ribbon, Purple Heart, Victory Medal of World War I, American Defense Ribbon with bronze star, Philippine Liberation Ribbon, Victory Medal World War II, and Presidential Unit Citation with two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Epilepsy Clinic To Be Started Here Next Week

Health Department To Sponsor Service

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county and city health officer, announced yesterday that an Epilepsy clinic will be opened in Allegany County next Wednesday.

Dr. Samuel Livingston, of the staff of the Seizure clinic of Harriet Lane Home, Johns Hopkins Hospital, will be in charge of the clinic to be held in the basement of City Hall January 24 from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.

The clinic will be by appointment only and Dr. Frantz said all appointments for the first clinic are already filled.

The Epilepsy clinic is part of a statewide program sponsored by the State Department of Health.

In general, Johns Hopkins is taking care of clinics in the western sections of the state, with specialists from the University of Maryland covering the eastern areas.

All patients for the clinic must be referred by private physicians.

Initial examinations will be made at Johns Hopkins Hospital, officials said, where complete facilities are available for complete tests, including an electro encephalogram, if necessary.

Follow up treatment will be done in the clinics, which will be held here once each two months.

Minister Asks Aid In Handling Funeral Corteges

Rev. B. F. Hartman, pastor of Cumberland Methodist circuit, announced yesterday he will confer with the Cumberland Ministerial Association in an effort to expedite the handling of funeral processions in this city.

On a number of occasions, Rev. Mr. Hartman said, cars have entered the line of funeral corteges when a police escort was not leading the procession.

The minister explained the situation at a conference with Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn this week.

Chief Flynn said police furnish escorts when funeral homes request the service.

He added, however, that it is sometimes impossible to provide an escort when several funerals are scheduled at the same hour.

Police pointed out that a city ordinance requires that each car of a funeral cortege be clearly marked and that vehicles must burn their lights as a further means of letting other motorists know the nature of the cavalcade.

Investigation of the incidents disclosed that funeral directors had failed to ask for escorts, police said.

Plans Made To Form New Band

Plans are being made to organize an elementary-junior high school band in Allegany County with the first organizational meeting scheduled today at 9:30 a. m. at Pennsylvania Avenue school, Jack E. Platt, musical director for the county, said yesterday.

The new band will hold meetings once a month and will be under the direction of Harry Malcolm, instrumental instructor; Harold Eder, Fort Hill band director; Kenneth Bachman, Bruce High School band director; and Lester Garman, Beall High School musical director.

Platt said an anticipated 175 students in the county of junior high and elementary ages will participat in the organization.

Efforts are being made to complete the project so students from the entire county will receive expert instruction and experience working in large groups.

Any student with a year's qualified instruction is eligible to join, Platt related, and can become a member of the group.

Looted Articles Are Recovered

Police reported yesterday that some of the articles looted from the ruins of the Christmas night fire on Wineow Street have been recovered and that early action is expected on the rest.

Detective Thomas J. See said three boys, one colored and the others white, have surrendered a .38 caliber revolver, shells and miscellaneous articles they took from the room of Walter Younger at 152 Wineow Street.

He said one of the boys admitted using a meat cleaver to break open a chest in which the articles were locked.

Smoke abatement is part of a crusade for health and the cost of the program will be repaid in better health of the community, George B. Hitchock, smoke abatement engineer for the City of Cumberland, declared yesterday.

Cumberland is about in the middle bracket among the some 200 cities which have smoke abatement programs.

He said that in 1949, Pittsburgh's dustfall averaged 51.5 tons; Chicago, 33.94; Cumberland, 28.46; Cincinnati 27.84, and Milwaukee, 36.8.

Some improvement is needed, he reported, but much progress has been made.

There is a growing body of data, Hitchcock said, to prove the connection between air pollution and cancer in Cumberland, and work on the study is being continued.

Collects Samples Of Sewage

J. B. Dowling, state health department sanitarian, is seen collecting for analysis a sample of raw sewage draining upon McMullen Highway near Fairgo. He said the State Roads Commission and the Health Department have inaugurated an intensive drive to improve health conditions along the some 150 miles of primary roads in this county. Dowling said the unwholesome condition generally results from the inadequacy of septic tanks.

Rubber Output Is Slashed By Government

Reduction Order May Effect Local Plant

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The government tonight slashed about 7,650 tons off the amount of synthetic rubber that will be available to make tires and other products for civilians this month.

Officials said the cut probably will mean that many manufacturers of rubber products will have to work fewer days than they had planned during January.

The National Production Authority announced that civilian allocations of general purpose synthetic rubber, known as GRS, are being cut 17 per cent in January.

Such allocations had been expected previously to total about 45,000 tons for the month.

The affected type of synthetic rubber is a substitute for crude rubber and is used in making tires, belting, hose and many other products.

Tire manufacturers are required to use a fixed percentage of such rubber in order to conserve the supply of natural rubber for defense purposes.

In passenger car tires, a fixed percentage is required for different types of tires. The NPA said that synthetic production for January is falling below expectations because of mechanical difficulties and bad weather encountered during the reopening of government-owned synthetic rubber plants.

The NPA said no early shortage of tires is expected to result from the synthetic cut. Tire production recently had been high, officials explained.

Edmund S. Burke, president of the local Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, said last night the plant would make no changes in its present four-day working week until the directive has been received here by company officials.

"It probably will have some effect on us," he stated.

State Agencies Seek Check On Open Sewage Conditions

Highways Polluted From Septic Tanks

The stepping up of a State Roads Commission and Health Department program to curb the dumping of sewage upon highways of Allegany County was announced yesterday by J. B. Dowling, state health department sanitarian.

Results of a survey this week of all primary roads by Dowling and George B. Hale, resident maintanance engineer for the SRC, showed widespread violations of laws regarding health conditions on the highways.

In many cases, Dowling said, raw sewage was found running down the bank and upon the highways like hillside springs.

Hale said the maintenance problem caused when such sewage pours upon the roads and freezes is costly from a monetary standpoint, to say nothing of the health hazard.

In cold weather, SRC officials said, the sewage freezes and creates dangerous icy spots which must be cindered. After the weather warms, the excretia dries up and is blown everywhere to become a serious health hazard.

Dowling said parts of McMullen Highway are the worst offenders, but said conditions existing along the road at Fairgo must be multiplied a hundredfold to get a true picture.

The Health Department is now investigating between 20 and 25 complaints of sewage conditions, Dowling said.

The situation will be corrected, Dowling said, as adequate septic tanks are provided.

In Baltimore, a temperature of 68 degrees was said to be the highest temperature ever recorded on a January 19. The previous record, one degree lower, was set on January 19, 1929.

Approximately 250 area reservists are expected to attend the open house and dedicatory service for the opening of the new Second Army Organized Reserve Corps armory on the third floor of the Footer building, corner of Howard and South Mechanic Streets, Tuesday.

Col. Arthur L. Shreve, chief of the Maryland Military district, will inspect the new armory Tuesday and will speak at the luncheon-meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club at Central YMCA. Col. Shreve originally planned to attend the dinner for the dedication at 6 p. m. at Ali Ghan Shrine Club and later speak at a meeting of the six area reserve units here at 8 p. m. in the new armory but will be unable to remain here due to other military commitments. Col. Donald McGrayne, senior army instructor of the Maryland Military District, will be guest speaker at the affair.

Col. Shreve, a native of Baltimore, attended Gilman County School and Baltimore Polytechnic prior to entering the service with the 110th Field Artillery at the outbreak of World War I. He later served as a combat pilot in France and was appointed second lieutenant in the regular army in September, 1920.

The Baltimorean served on the staff of the Commanding General, South Luzon, in the Philippines when World War II broke out. He was captured by the Japanese at the fall of Bataan, April 9, 1942, and was a prisoner until liberated by the Seventh Army, September 8, 1945.

Epilepsy Clinic To Be Started Here Next Week

Health Department To Sponsor Service

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county and city health officer, announced yesterday that an Epilepsy clinic will be opened in Allegany County next Wednesday.

Dr. Samuel Livingston, of the staff of the Seizure clinic of Harriet Lane Home, Johns Hopkins Hospital, will be in charge of the clinic to be held in the basement of City Hall January 24 from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.

The clinic will be by appointment only and Dr. Frantz said all appointments for the first clinic are already filled.

The Epilepsy clinic is part of a statewide program sponsored by the State Department of Health.

In general, Johns Hopkins is taking care of clinics in the western sections of the state, with specialists from the University of Maryland covering the eastern areas.

All patients for the clinic must be referred by private physicians.

Initial examinations will be made at Johns Hopkins Hospital, officials said, where complete facilities are available for complete tests, including an electro encephalogram, if necessary.

Follow up treatment will be done in the clinics, which will be held here once each two months.

Minister Asks Aid In Handling Funeral Corteges

Rev. B. F. Hartman, pastor of Cumberland Methodist circuit, announced yesterday he will confer with the Cumberland Ministerial Association in an effort to expedite the handling of funeral processions in this city.

On a number of occasions, Rev. Mr. Hartman said, cars have entered the line of funeral corteges when a police escort was not leading the procession.

The minister explained the situation at a conference with Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn this week.

Chief Flynn said police furnish escorts when funeral homes request the service.

He added, however, that it is sometimes impossible to provide an escort when several funerals are scheduled at the same hour.

Police pointed out that a city ordinance requires that each car of a funeral cortege be clearly marked and that vehicles must burn their lights as a further means of letting other motorists know the nature of the cavalcade.

Investigation of the incidents disclosed that funeral directors had failed to ask for escorts, police said.

Plans Made To Form New Band

Plans are being made to organize an elementary-junior high school band in Allegany County with the first organizational meeting scheduled today at 9:30 a. m. at Pennsylvania Avenue school, Jack E. Platt, musical director for the county, said yesterday.

The new band will hold meetings once a month and will be under the direction of Harry Malcolm, instrumental instructor; Harold Eder, Fort Hill band director; Kenneth Bachman, Bruce High School band director; and Lester Garman, Beall High School musical director.

Platt said an anticipated 175 students in the county of junior high and elementary ages will participat in the organization.

Efforts are being made to complete the project so students from the entire county will receive expert instruction and experience working in large groups.

Any student with a year's qualified instruction is eligible to join, Platt related, and can become a member of the group.

Looted Articles Are Recovered

Police reported yesterday that some of the articles looted from the ruins of the Christmas night fire on Wineow Street have been recovered and that early action is expected on the rest.

Detective Thomas J. See said three boys, one colored and the others white, have surrendered a .38 caliber revolver, shells and miscellaneous articles they took from the room of Walter Younger at 152 Wineow Street.

He said one of the boys admitted using a meat cleaver to break open a chest in which the articles were locked.

U. N. UNITS CARRY FIGHT TO REDS

Passes Resolution Urging U. N. Action

WASHINGTON, Jan 19(AP) — An aroused House of Representatives shouted approval today of a resolution urging the United Nations to brand Red China an aggressor in Korea.

In a terse 28 words, the resolution declared:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the House of Representatives that the United Nations should immediately act and declare the Chinese Communist authorities an aggressor in Korea."

Only a few "no" votes were audible as the members approved the policy statement by a voice vote.

In the brief pre-vote debate, however, some Republicans contended the resolution was tantamount to a declaration of war on the Chinese Communists.

Martin Disagrees

However, Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, said he did not construe it that way. It is merely an expression of sentiment among the House members. But it came at a critical time when representatives of the non-Communuist world were jockeying nervously at the United Nations headquarters at Lake Success, N. Y., over a resolution to brand the Chinese Reds as aggressors.

Sponsors of the proposed U. N. resolution decided to delay its introduction until tomorrow to permit the delegates to consult with their governments.

House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts introduced the resolution in the House, and was joined in the action by Republican Leader Martin.

Martin Has One Regret

McCormack said its overwhelming approval by the House would show the rest of the world that the United States is truly united.

Martin said his only regret was that the action wasn't taken several weeks ago, to head off what he called the recent "appeasement" vote in the U. N. on a Korean cease-fire proposal.

Although McCormack presented the resolution as an expression of bi-partisan foreign policy, Rep. Shafer (R-Mich) declared that the Republicans supporting the move "don't speak for the Republican party" and forced a quorum roll call to establish that a majority of the membership was on hand. The tally showed 268 present, with 218 required for a quorum.

O'Donnell Flies To Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell returned to Washington tonight at the invitation of the Air Force high command to "discuss the circumstances" of an interview in which he advocated using the atomic bomb on Red China.

O'Donnell landed at Bolling Air Force base at 9:15 p. m. E.S.T. after a flight from the west coast.

He told reporters that he came at the invitation of Gen. Nathan Twining, vice chief of air staff, "to discuss operations in Korea and also the incidents of my press conference at March Field."

The announcement that O'Donnell had been "invited" to Washington prompted speculation that the Air Force might take disciplinary action.

Move Follows Behind-Scenes "Freeze" Row

Truman Appoints Johnston To Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — President Truman today fired Alan Valentine as the nation's economic stabilization chief after a behind-the-scenes row in which Valentine opposed an immediate price-wage freeze.

Mr. Truman immediately named Eric Johnston, former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, as his successor. Johnston is now head of the Motion Picture Association of America.

The president's shakeup of his economic high command was interpreted on Capitol Hill and elsewhere as heralding a speedup in the anti-inflation fight and the imposition of sweeping price-wage controls.

Valentine himself said the President believed drastic action should be taken immediately.

But the exact time of such action was still uncertain. Charles E. Wilson, defense mobilization chief, merely told newsmen that Johnston's appointment would tend to hasten a decision on the long-debated question of controls.

Some high-level officials have predicted that a nationwide "freeze" on prices and wages will be announced before Feb. 1, and this seemed to be borne out in Valentine's letter of resignation.

Valentine wrote Mr. Truman that only yesterday he gave Wilson a detailed plan for "overall mandatory price and wage stabilization effective about Feb. 1."

Valentine said he wanted about two more weeks to muster an adequate staff before clamping down controls, and he told the President:

"I am sorry it (the plan) is not acceptable."

Valentine took over the stabilization job just three months ago. His resignation—submitted at Mr. Truman's request — capped a rising storm of criticism from members of Congress who complained that Valentine's cautious attitude in combatting inflation was jeopardizing the nation's economy. Valentine felt, for one thing, that more time was necessary to establish enforcement machinery.

In his letter to Mr. Truman, Valentine insisted there had been "no disagreement" with his associates "as to the necessity of overall price and wage controls," but he said:

"There has been honest difference of opinion as to the precise timing and method of their introduction."

Cook Admits He Slew 6, Including Mosser Family

Shot Hostages When They Cried For Help

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—The FBI said today William E. (Badman) Cook, Jr., admitted killing six people including the five members of the Carl Mosser family.

Cook killed the Mossers—mother, father and three children — in their automobile, the FBI said, after he had kidnaped them and forced them to accompany him through Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas and Missouri.

The 23-year-old Missouri ex-convict was quoted by Ewell C. Richardson, FBI agent in charge here, as admitting he also shot and killed Robert Dewey, Seattle salesman, in California.

He denied, Richardson said, that he had killed any other person,

Boasted Of Killing Eight

Officers previously had said he boasted during his flight that he had killed eight people.

The FBI said Cook told them he had held the Mossers as hostages and had agreed to leaving them bound and gagged to insure his escape. But he later became alarmed and shot them, his statement declared.

The tragic story of the Mosser family, while recounted without emotional touches by the FBI, indicated they underwent a terrible ordeal before death about 2 a. m., Jan. 2, near Cook's hometown of Joplin, Mo. They had been his terrified prisoners more than three days.

Near Joplin, the Mossers made their last outcry for help. At the sight of a police car, Mrs. Thelma Mosser, 29, became hysterical.

Dumped Bodies In Mine Shaft

The children, Ronald Dean, seven, Gary Carl, five, and Pamela Sue, three, started to scream. Cook said he then bound the mother and children — leaving Mosser, 33, at the wheel of the car. The police car passed again and Mrs. Mosser again became hysterical. The FBI said he then shot the whole family in the automobile.

He then drove into Joplin, and dumped the bodies into an abandoned mine shaft not far from his home. Their bodies were found there Monday, while Cook was being brought here from his place of capture in Mexico.

Baltimore's Air Raid Siren Splits Seams

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP) — Baltimore has been looking for an air raid siren loud enough to warn all its citizens.

Today it apparently found it.

But the racket was too much for the siren. It split its seams.

Paul L. Holland, city civilian defense director, said the steam horn will have to be rebuilt — of sterner stuff.

Ingenito Guilty; Given Life Term

WOODBURY, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP)—Ernest Ingenito, charged with the slaying of five of his wife's relatives, tonight was found guilty of first degree murder with a recommendation of mercy.

The jury of seven women and five men brought in its verdict at 9:27 p. m., after deliberating nearly five hours.

The recommendations for mercy, under New Jersey law, carries a sentence of life imprisonment. The state had asked for death. The defense called for the 26-year-old appliance salesman to be punished but argued it should be no worse than second degree murder.

Ingenito was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor by Gloucester County Judge John B. Wick.

Although charged with slaying five, he was tried only for the killing of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Pearl Mazzoli.

Plan To Condemn China Is Delayed By Consultations

Arab-Asian Nations Favor New Appeal

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 19 (AP)—U. N. action on Red China bogged down today in a welter of behind-the-scenes conferences on the next moves.

Sponsors of a plan to brand the Communist Chinese as aggressors delayed presenting a formal resolution to the U. N. Political Committee to give some delegations more time to consult their governments on details of the proposal.

A U. S. spokesman reported that the American delegation found "quite solid" support for the denunciatory resolution in conferences with British commonwealth countries and France. They were unable, however, to draft a proposal for presentation to the committee today, as was expected, he said.

Arab-Asian Bloc Favors Appeal

Ten Middle Eastern and Asian countries met for two hours and were reported to have agreed on proposing a new appeal to Red China, based on a cease-fire in Korea in exchange for, a seven-power conference. This parley would not be held in China, as demanded by the Peiping regime, but in a place to be picked by the United Nations. Under the reported plan, the Chinese demand for a U. N. seat would be decided at the conference, and not beforehand as the Peiping government asked.

Lebanon, Iran Absent

Lebanon and Iran were absent from today's conference, giving rise to speculation that harmony was not complete in the Asian-Middle East camp, although there was no official explanation for their absence.

Some of the sponsors were reported to have little hope for its chances of acceptance by the Red Chinese, but wanted to make the appeal anyway for the record before lining up behind the U. S. demand for the aggressor tag.

Gen. Collins Declares Army Will Have Equivalent Of 24 Combat Divisions By July 1

But Says Goal May Have To Be Boosted In Testimony Supporting Military Measure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today that Army strength by July 1 will be equivalent to 24 combat divisions compared with "the 12 or 14 previously mentioned."

The mid-year total will include 18 actual divisions together with many combat units not organized as divisions, Collins said. He did not indicate the Army's present combat power.

The Army Chief of Staff agreed with Adm. Forrest P. Sherman that the nation's current goal of 3,862,000 persons in the armed services may have to be boosted.

Support UMT Measure

Collins and Sherman, together with Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg of the Air Force, all members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified separately before the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee. They supported the administration's bill to draft 18-year-olds, extend the draft induction period to 27 months, and establish universal training.

Collins said he had called for a study of the problem of getting more combat strength out of Army manpower. He added:

"We will be able to get one combat division and possibly two divisions without upping strength."

An Army division contains some 18,000 men. It has been estimated that an average of 20,000 to 40,000 persons are required to support it in administrative, supply and other capacities.

More Antiaircraft Units

The building of combat strength by July will include 18 divisions and 18 regimental combat teams with supporting units, together with numerous independent tank battalions, field artillery battalions and similar combat units, the General said.

"We will have a great number of antiaircraft units that are actually combat units," he went on.

Sherman, chief of naval operations, made no forecast of what the new military manpower goal might be as he gave his "personal opinion" that the target may have to be raised unless the world situation improves.

Fumes Spread Panic In Plant

DADE CITY, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP) — Fumes from a chlorine-base disinfectant threw 600 women into panic in one part of the big Peaco Packing Company here today and sent 175 of them to a hospital for treatment.

Dr. W. H. Walters and Dr. Wardlow Jones said all almost certainly would recover and only about a dozen would have to remain in the hospital.

"Dropping like flies," was a favored expression used by the women in describing how they passed out when the fumes from the disinfectant burst upon them in the sectionizing room at the plant.

The little 31-bed Jackson Memorial Hospital was crammed with ambulance-loads of women. They were lying in the halls, on porches, anywhere they could find a spot. Women kept coming five hours after the accident.

A. L. Hemingway, plant foreman, said the accident happened like this in the sectionizing department where grapefruit is cut into sections for putting into cans:

An unidentified workman dipped an old grapefruit can into a two-foot high keg of commercial disinfectant powder which is 70 per cent chlorine.

Apparently there was still some juice in the can and the liquid set off a chemical reaction. The fumes sifted into the ventilating system and the blowers took them all over the big room.

FCC Orders Probe Of Long Distance Telephone Rates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today ordered an inquiry into interstate and foreign long distance telephone service. The idea is to see whether charges to the public in those fields can be reduced.

The commission said the investigation, covering the Bell System operated by American Telephone and Telegraph Co., was prompted by recent reports of increased earnings by A. T. & T.

The parent company and its 22 affiliates in the U. S. were directed to file a statement on the matter with the FCC before March 23.

Initial hearings were ordered to begin here April 16.

U. S. Military Chiefs Think U.N. Can Hold

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Top Army and Air Force chiefs just back from a flying trip to Korea were reported by a senator today to have expressed conviction that U. N. forces can hold on there.

The two military leaders, Gens. J. Lawton Collins of the Army and Hoyt Vandenberg of the Air Force met with a Senate subcommittee for an hour-long report on what they found.

Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee later told reporters the generals had given senators a brief but complete account of the Korean situation."

Another senator who sat in the hush-hush discussion but would not permit use of his name told reporters both generals said U. N. forces can hold on. This senator said there was no talk about a complete withdrawal or evacuation.

Truman Links Stalin With All Other Dictators

Predicts Free World Will Win Struggle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — President Truman tonight bluntly linked Russian Premier Stalin with all dictators who sought "enslavement of the common people" and predicted the free world will win the struggle against "the materialist forces" arrayed against them.

Mr. Truman said "there isn't any difference" between Hitler, Mussolini, Charles the First of England, Louis 16th and other dictators and the Russian leader.

"They are all just alike." Mr. Truman told a "business mobilization dinner" of the Sp[illegible]g of Business Magazine Editors.

"Alexander the First of Russia was just as much a dictator as any other that ever existed. They believed in the enslavement of the common people."

"There is no difference between dictators, if you study your history. There has not been any difference in any police state that ever existed in the history of the world. They are all alike. They are all for the enslavement of the individual for the benefit of the state."

Mr. Truman dropped in on the dinner to help honor his old friend, Paul Wooton, representative of the Chilton Publications and Washington correspondent for the New Orleans Times Picayune.

While Mr. Truman has repeatedly denounced Soviet Russia and Communist imperialism, tonight's comment was one of the rare occasions in which he has taken Stalin personally to task in public.

Defense Dept. Revises College Draft Rule

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Defense Department today knocked out a draft rule which had caused many college students to quit school in mid-term.

The new order gives the student who gets a draft notice the right to volunteer for the armed service of his choice. As is the practice now, he won't be called to duty until the end of the school year he has started.

Under the old plan, the student getting a draft call automatically was destined for the army.

As a result, the Defense Department said, numbers of them dropped out of school to volunteer and get their choice.

The new order permits them to wait until near the end of the college year before signifying their choice.

14-Year-Old Korea Veteran Heads Back To Schoolroom

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 19 (AP) — Fourteen-year-old James D. Byrd is headed back to a sixth-grade schoolroom—via Korea and as an ex-soldier.

But when he goes back, it will be much against his wishes. He wants to stay in the Army, where he'd dreamed of being since he was eight.

James, recovering from frostbitten fingers and toes at Percy Jones Army Hospital here, tried twice to enlist before he was able to convince an "eager-beaver" recruiting sergeant at Columbus, O., last June 9 he was 18.

An alert blond, James is five feet, nine inches tall and weighs 150 pounds.

Maj. Chester H. Davis, Percy Jones executive officer, says as soon as James recovers he will be given an honorable discharge from the Army because of his age.

James looks gloomily to that day, saying: "I'll have to go back to school, I guess, but I don't like it."

He ran away from his sixth-grade school room near Beckley, W. Va., to enlist. He tried first at Marion, Va., and then at London, Ky., but couldn't convince recruiters he was 18. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil R. Davis, now of Youngstown, O.

Allied Forces Reoccupy Key City Of Wonju

1,000 Korean Reds Slain Near Yongwol

TOKYO, Saturday, Jan. 20 (AP)—United Nations forces united deep inside Red lines on three fronts astride the Korean front today in the face of an expected third all-out Communist offensive.

Three smaller Allied patrols, led by tanks, occupied Wonju on the central front Friday without opposition. The battered key rail and highway center had been abandoned by the U. S. Second Division Tuesday.

About 10,000 Allied troops jumped off across the mountainous east-central front Friday near Yongwol, 30 miles southeast of Wonju, and, with airpower to help, killed an estimated 1,000 North Korean Reds.

On the western front, where a roving band of tank-supported doughboys had been harassing for days all week, brief skirmishes were reported near Osan, 20 miles southeast of Seoul.

Small, sharp patrol fights flared at many points along the Korean no-man's-land.

Allies Are Ready

A U. N. division staff officer said the Reds will strike "when they are damn good and ready."

He added: "We are ready for them. We stood off more than the attacks they'll be able to mount."

The officer said it's hard to see what they are waiting for.

"There are probably 100,000 of them—three Chinese armies and a bunch of North Koreans—north of Seoul and south of the Han River. They have plenty of food, although they may need a little more heavy equipment," he added.

Another staff officer expressed the opinion that "they'll hit us before the first of the month."

The fight at Yongwol was the bloodiest of the week for the entire front.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Stone reported that most of the two U. N. regiments opposing the battle to the enemy were South Koreans. They were supported by artillery and mortars as they struck east and west of the town.

Murdered Yanks' Bodies Found

Allied patrols were in the town and apparently holding it, Yongwol had changed hands several times earlier in the week.

Seven American correspondents joined about Wonju, took pictures and talked to civilians.

AP Correspondent William C. Bernard reported that the Allies met no opposition as they entered Wonju but that they were keeping its five remaining civilians under "surveillance."

The bodies of ten American soldiers, nine of them apparently murdered by their North Korean captors, were found Friday by a U. N. patrol on the east central front. One of the U. S. soldiers apparently had died of battle wounds.

The murdered men had been shot in the head.

Sen. Robertson Urges Tax Boost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Sen. A. Willis Robertson proposed today that Congress shoot from the hip all inflation with an immediate further tax increase of $8,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000.

He wants to raise taxes on individuals, corporations and on some goods, including whiskey.

Robertson, a Virginia Democrat, said it is unrealistic to assume that a bill to produce the entire $18,000,000,000 President Truman seeks to balance the budget can be enacted much before next December. Meanwhile, he said, billions in potential additional revenue will be slipping away and inflation may flare into greater violence.

"The practical thing, the logical thing and indeed the urgent thing for Congress to do is to quickly enact a modified tax bill calculated to absorb some $8,000,000,000 or $9,000,000,000 of current income," Robertson said in a statement.

Bomber And Fighter Collide, Killing Three

PRATTVILLE, Ala., Jan. 19 (AP)—Three airmen were killed after an Air Force B-25 bomber and F-51 fighter collided in mid-air and crashed about half a mile apart near here today.

Pilots of both planes got their parachutes open but only the B-25 pilot lived.

Capt. Rex Ellis, public information officer at Maxwell Air Force base, Montgomery, where the bomber was based, said the fighter plane pilot was injured fatally.

Two crewmen in the B-25 went down with the plane, he said.

McKeldin Urges Constitutional Convention Call

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 19 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin established himself today as an active proponent of a convention to rewrite Maryland's constitution.

He said he had passed word along to House Minority Leader Lofstrand (R-Montgomery) that Republicans were obliged to support a convention call.

"We are pledged to it in our platform," McKeldin said at a news conference. "We have to be for it."

McKeldin has frequently expressed personal support for legislation to hold a constitutional convention. Voters approved one by almost a 4-to-1 majority last November.

A referendum must be held every 20 years. But the Legislature must pass an enabling act, otherwise no convention would be held.

McKeldin said he had heard reports that considerable opposition to a convention was developing in Western Maryland, from which Republicans derive much of their strength in the Assembly. That was one reason for conferring with Lofstrand, he explained.

The Governor said he would "have to give some thought" to new proposals for a veterans' bonus. The GOP platform also had endorsed a referendum on a bonus for Marylanders who served in World War II.

Meanwhile, the House of Delegates held the first Friday business meeting of the current session.

During their brief meeting, the delegates passed and sent along to the Governor a Senate bill requiring a statement in bold print in all installment contracts for automobile purchases of exactly what type insurance is provided.

It was the first piece of legislation to clear the 1951 General Assembly and the first upon which McKeldin will be called to pass upon as governor.

Six new bills came into the House.

One, by Delegate Wilkinson (D-Prince George's), would shave sales tax returns by exempting purchases of candy from the two per cent consumers' tax. Wilkinson estimated his proposal would cost the state $40,000 in tax receipts.

Katz Becomes Aide To Fifth Governor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 19 (AP)—State Police Capt. Menash E. Katz saluted solemnly today and became aide to his fifth governor.

The veteran officer, long commander of the State House guard, received his commission from Gov. McKeldin at a ceremony witnessed, by State House employes and newsmen.

"Thank you, sir," Katz said and raised his right arm in a second salute.

"I have five of them" Katz confided later. He displayed commissions bearing the great seal of Maryland and signatures of former Govs. Ritchie, Nice, O'Conor and Lane.

Motive Sought In Boy's Slaying

CRETE, Ill., Jan. 19 (AP) — Police investigating the seeming motiveless kidnaping and strangling of 13-year-old Billy Rodenberg sought to learn today whether he was the victim of a "thrill" killing.

Other theories under study are that he was killed by abductors who grew panicky during an intensive two-day plane and posse search made for the missing boy, or that young "bullies" choked him to death accidentally to keep him from crying.

The body of the slender, bespectacled carpenter's son was reported tossed from an automobile last night on a residential street where the body was found. Four Civilian Air Patrol planes and a posse of 150 persons had been searching the area 35 miles south of Chicago since he disappeared 53 hours earlier.

The lads eyes were swollen from crying or being blindfolded or both.

Acting Police Chief Michael Murphy said authorities so far are "at a total loss for clues."

Georgia Senate Passes Anti-Intimidation Bill

ATLANTA, Jan. 19 (AP) — The Georgia Senate today unanimously passed and sent to the Governor a bill to outlaw mask wearing, cross burning, and intimidation.

The measure passed the House last week with only one dissenting vote. Gov. Talmadge has said he would sign such a bill into law.

The bill makes it a misdemeanor to wear a mask or burn crosses on public property, or on private property unless the owner gives written permission. It also makes it a misdemeanor for any person or group to attempt to intimidate in any manner any other person or group.

City Police Cost Small Compared To Other Cities

Cumberland taxpayers have a smaller annual bill for police protection than do residents of most other cities of its size in the United States.

This is shown in data gathered by the International City Managers Association for its current Municipal Year Book.

The bill for the local department came to $186,000 in 1949, equivalent to $3.98 for each resident of the city. In other communities of relative size, 25,000 to 50,000, the cost of police operations came to $4.92 per capita.

Nationally, for all cities of 10,000 population and over, the average cost was $7.22 per capita.

Most of the cost of operating police departments is for wages and salaries, which constitute almost 84 percent of the total, excluding retirement payments. In Cumberland, the part budgeted for payroll is 81 percent.

An examination of beginning and maximum salaries paid patrolmen on municipal police forces shows that a wide range exists. In Cumberland's size group, the median entrance salary is $2,663 a year and the maximum $2,940, cost of living additions included.

Locally, patrolmen started at $2,280 and had a top of $2,640 as of the beginning of the year.

Nearly 5,000 people living on Great Britain's lonely St. Helena Island in the South Atlantic Ocean get along satisfactorily on their 47-square-mile exposed submarine mountain summit without an internal mail system. A large part of the revenue of this island of Napoleon's exile, however, comes from the sale of its postage stamps to collectors.

The Lend-Lease Account

Hard as it is to get the Russians to agree with Americans on ordinary matters of international affairs, the State Department is having another try at a still harder project. This is the attempt to obtain a settlement of the account for lend-lease materials and equipment sent to Russia during the war and kept after the war for peacetime use. The United States wants 186 small naval craft back, and wants cash payment for the other things.

The Russians have been induced to enter a conference on the matter In this they confess at least that there is some foundation for the American claims. As a matter of fact they have returned a few small vessels since the war, and occasionally indicate that they intend someday to return the rest. Apparently they will wear them out first if they can. No progress worthy of the name has been made toward getting settlement for supplies used after the war or still held, nor for patent use claims by American oil companies.

This lend-lease account doubtless has not been brought to the attention of the Russian people, at least not by their own government. Moscow is fond of pretending that Russia won the war alone, and that the United States, far from helping, has always been a threat to Russian security. This line of propaganda might pale a little if the Russian people knew about the eleven billion dollars' worth of lend-lease aid. That which went for war uses has been considered well spent. The rest might be well spent, too, if the Russian people found out about it.

Books Across The Sea

One function of the United Nations Educational, Cultural and Scientific Organization is the issuance of coupons which are used in place of currency in the purchasing of American books by nationals of other countries. Much red tape is thereby cut.

It started two years ago with a Scottish farmer who tried without success to purchase in London a certain American book on agricultural technique. Dollars, pounds and customs regulations would have been involved if the regular procedures in sending to America for the book had been followed. Instead, the coupon system was devised The UNESCO furnishes coupons, which can be bought for British or other currency. This international scrip has since been used in many countries, India leading the world in the amount of book purchases Textbooks, medical journals, treatises on beekeeping and fiction have been acquired in this manner. The UNESCO finishes the job by redeeming the coupons with American dollars, to pay the sellers of the books.

Here is one instance where a United Nations agency is accomplishing what the whole body was intended to do: it simplifies and smoothes out international transactions, removing causes of possible friction.

Outgrowing "Hell Week"

"Hell Week" as observed by fraternities in many colleges, has involved practices approaching the fiendish. The tendency toward cruelty which sometimes seems inherent in the young has been allowed full play, with occasional serious and even tragic results.

In one Midwestern college, the death of two students as a direct result of "Hell Week" observance awakened the college world with a jolt. This school now forbids these goings-on, and such projects as helping to make substandard housing more livable have been adopted in their place. The University of Massachusetts Interfraternity Council has recently replaced the former initiation stunts by "Character-building Week."

College students can no longer be called boys and girls. Maturity has been thrust upon them, whether they are ready for it or not. It is heartening to see them put aside childish, senseless horseplay in favor of more enlightened activities.

Spanish Troops

Spain is being sounded out, the report goes, as to whether it will send troops for the proposed European army, and if so how many. The story goes that Franco is more than willing if equipment is furnished.

Unless manpower is everything and efficiency something to be acquired later, any Spanish troops would be no great addition to the United Nations' cause. In the 1920's Spain proved utterly unable to put down the rebellion of Abd el Krim in Morocco, and finally had to turn the job over to France. Hitler put some Spanish troops on the Russian front, and found them quite unsatisfactory The burden of proof is on those who maintain that the Spanish army is any better now.

It is not being unduly cynical to wonder if Franco is not thinking that an army, equipped at the expense of someone else, would be a valuable asset for his dictatorship in the event of internal troubles.

International Curiosity

Where is the world's largest collection of books on American life, outside of the United States? H. L. White, Australia's Commonwealth librarian, thinks that it may be in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library of American Literature in the Commonwealth National Library at Canberra, the Australian capital. The aim of this collection is not merely to tell Australians about the United States, but to interpret our accomplishments and aspirations to the peoples of Southeast Asia, where Australia can often win a better hearing than we can.

Americans are perhaps a little too apt to take it for granted that other peoples should want to know all about us. It might make for better international feeling, and help in the solution of our problems, if we took as much interest in other countries as the Australians are taking in us.

Strain Of Ties

Reports from Ottawa say that a sore spot is developing in official relations between the United States and Canada over the situation in the Far East. The participation of Canada in the United Nations action in Korea has been hardly more than a token. United States efforts to stir the Canadian government to more activity have not been too happily received, since Canada does not see eye to eye with us on some basic points of Far Eastern policy. Such differences strain friendship, but when close friends disagree they have a chance to learn something

Many a true word has been mistakenly regarded as a jest.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Odd Walks

DON'T ACCUSE everyone who is seen staggering down the street of being drunk. The man or woman may be ill, as a score of medical conditions alter the gait. Moreover, there is enough difference in the manner in which the person proceeds to permit the physician to tell at a glance what is wrong.

In alcoholic intoxication the subject totters, reels, lurches, and staggers forward, backward, and sideways. This is in contrast to the unsteady maneuvering of a victim of brain tumor who has a tendency to fall toward the side on which the lesion is located. The same occurs in dizziness resulting from ear infection.

• — • — •

In World War II many young men developed a swollen and painful ankle which they thought had been sprained while going over the obstacle course; but the diagnosis obviously was incorrect when on the following day a knee or elbow was involved similarly. They were victims of rheumatic fever. The soldiers assumed that exercise was responsible for the original incident. This sort of thing happens frequently with children. Should a youngster start limping, the parents may blame an accident or fall; they usually are right because boys and girls are likely to hurt themselves several times a day; but occasionally the limp is caused by arthritis or rheumatic fever which, when mild, may go undetected because junior remembers that he fell or stumbled a few days previously. In case of doubt it is always wise to call the family physician. Along the same line we should not attribute stumbling and toe dragging to clumsiness or laziness.

The individual who limps because of a painful joint walks differently from one who is paralyzed or has a short leg. The foot that hurts is dragged on the ground carefully to avoid injury and the weight of the body is then borne just long enough to permit the sound leg to be swung forward hurriedly. In this way the person hobbles along painfully until he reaches his goal. When one leg is shorter than the other, the body drops slightly when the shorter leg is put on the ground. The opposite hip sticks out more prominently and the knee is kept bent. To maintain balance the body frequently is swung over to the affected side; on standing still the spine is bent to compensate for the tilt in the pelvis.

• — • — •

Those who have recuperated from polio or have weak muscles from other causes also have a special gait. The impaired extremity is thrown forward and almost simultaneously the trunk is moved over to the involved side to balance the center of gravity over the joints. This is necessary because the muscles do not have the strength to hold up the body; the weight must be carried entirely by the skeletal structures. After a stroke, difficulty in walking is common because the muscles on the paralyzed side are more rigid than usual. The leg moves with the body because it is stiff. In propelling the extremity the person swings it in a semi-circle. Both legs are likely to be involved in multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy and lateral sclerosis. The limbs are stiff and weak and to move forward they perform the same arc except that one leg crosses in front of the other. This is known as the "scissors' gait."

Food Poisoning

Mrs. U. writes: What can be done for pork poisoning?

REPLY

If you refer to food poisoning from contaminated pork, the stomach can be washed out via a tube if symptoms appear soon after eating. After several hours have elapsed, it may be possible to eliminate the tainted meat remaining in the system by giving Epsom salts or other purgative, unless diarrhea already exists. On the other hand, once the food is digested, nothing can be done except to wait and see what happens.

Stomach Position

Mrs. R. writes: Does an upside down stomach cause poor appetite in a woman of 70?

REPLY

This is questionable because in all probability the stomach has been "upside down" for a long time. Appetite at 70 may not be good except for breakfast, which is considered the "best meal of the day" by many oldsters.

DON'T BLACKLIST SALT

O. W. T. writes: I have read that the use of salt causes kidney disease, hardening of the arteries, and high blood pressure. Is this true?

REPLY

No. Salt enters the picture only because it is restricted when hypertension is present or heart or kidney trouble leads to a dropsical condition. Blaming these disorders on salt would be the same as saying just because victims of heart disease cannot exercise strenuously that heart disease is caused by exercise.

Charles Wilson Alerts Staff For Wage-Price Control Clamp-Down; New Factories Will Be Tempting Targets For Enemy; House To Be Reapportioned

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Mobilization boss Charles Wilson has ordered his staff to be ready to clamp down price and wage controls within two weeks. He got the nod last week from President Truman who has finally agreed to all-out controls.

Previously the President had gone along with the Federal Reserve Board, which advised against putting the economy in a government strait jacket. The board argued that indirect controls, such as higher taxes and restrictions on consumer and bank credits, would eventually curb inflation. These indirect methods, however, have failed to hold down prices.

At the same time, a shake-up in the mobilization high-command may also accompany the new controls. For example, Wilson makes no secret around his office that he hopes to get rid of Price Administrator Mike Di Salle and Di Salle doesn't try to conceal his distaste for Economic Stabilization Director Alan Valentine. All this backbiting is likely to result in some heads rolling.

Meanwhile, across the Potomac in the Pentagon, the new Munitions Board Chairman John D. Small has been given 90 days to straighten out the mess he inherited. He took over the reins from Hubert Howard after the Munitions Board had failed in its assigment to stockpile strategic materials. However, President Truman still isn't satisfied with the board's progress, and has applied the spurs to the new chairman.

Dissecting Taft

Democrat senators were verbally dissecting Sen. Robert A. (for Alphonso) Taft in the Senate cloakroom the other day.

"Bob has a good mind and always brings up interesting points," defended Illinois' Sen. Paul Douglas.

"But what about his know-it-all atttiude that even gripes the Republicans?" he was asked.

"The truth is," Douglas explained, "the Senator is two people. He is Bob Taft, and he is Alphonso Taft."

Industrial Targets

In the haste to expand war production, the government is paying no attention to dispersal but is throwing up new factories right where the Russians can bomb them easiest. The truth is, 90 per cent of our new plants are being built in industrial areas that are already tempting targets.

Of approximately 80 defense plants now approved for construction, 18 are located in Pennsylvania's industrial heartland. The rest will be built in the production centers of Ohio, Michigan, Alabama, Illinois and New York—with a few scattered plants in Indiana, West Virginia, Kentucky, California, Maryland and Connecticut.

In other words, instead of scattering these factories around the country, the government is concentrating them in big cities such as Pittsburgh, Detroit, Birmingham, Chicago and Los Angeles. This not only makes our defense facilities more vulnerable, but adds to the housing, transportation and educational problems of these overcrowded centers.

Technically, the new plants will not be built by the government but by private companies. However, the government has a powerful say-so through its certification system. This is handled by the National Security Resources Board, which issues certificates of necessity for building defense plants. Only factories that have been certified by the NSRB are eligible for big tax reductions under the Defense Production Act.

Needless to say, this is a powerful lever for keeping the plant owners in line. However, the NSRB, while it has encouraged dispersal, has not enforced it. As a result, the owners are building their new factories right alongside the old.

It may be more costly to build defense plants in remote regions, but it would be safer from enemy air attack, hence a lot cheaper in the long run.

Rival Newsboys

Two rival newsboys, taking sides in the Pearson-McCarthy feud, carried on a shouting match on a busy Washington street corner the other day.

The boy hawking the Washington Times-Herald shouted: "Senator McCarthy accuses Pearson of publishing documents!"

Not to be outdone, the boy selling the Washington Post on the same corner shouted back: "Drew Pearson tells how Senator McCarthy aided Nazi war criminals! Read all about it!"

Shifts In The House

One of the toughest questions facing the 82nd Congress is the reapportionment of the House of Representatives to conform with population shifts of the last census.

It is easy enough to transfer the 14 seats from nine states that gained the least in population to the states that gained the most. However, this won't solve the problem.

Sooner or later Congress must face the fact that the House—the chamber our founding fathers said should be "close" to the people—hasn't grown up with the country. The first House of Representatives (1789-91) had 65 members, or one to approximately 61,500 people. Today the ratio is one congressman to approximately 346,000 people.

To use a more modern comparison, there were about 92,000,000 people in the United States in 1911 when the number of House seats was raised to 435. Today we still have 435 House members, though the population has grown by more than a third.

Smart, young Rep. Frank Chelf of Kentucky did some straight talking on this the other day to President Truman in a plea for his bill to raise House membership from 435 to 450.

"I don't want the House so big that the tail will wag the dog, and my bill doesn't do that, "explained Chelf. "But we've simply got to do something to give the people the democratic representation they deserve and the framers of the Constitution wanted them to have."

Truman promised to "think it over."

NOTE — Under reapportionment, California (which has led the population spurt since the 1940 census) will gain seven House seats, Florida will gain two, and Maryland, Michigan, Texas Virginia and Washington, one each. Pennsylvania will lose three seats; Missouri, New York and Oklahoma, two each; and Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee, one each.

Effects Of Inflation Hold Hardships For "Savers"

By MARK SULLIVAN

PRESIDENT Truman, in his economic message last week, spoke about inflation, the present existence of it and the danger of more. His concluding words were: "This must not happen."

Those words have a sound of firm determination. One must assume that Mr. Truman means them and that inflation will be checked. One step towards stopping inflation has been taken, it is an action of the Federal Reserve Board by which quantity of credit is restrained, including bank credit and credit used in installment selling. This, so far as it goes, is a direct and effective attack upon inflation. In addition, agencies for other steps—controls over prices, wages and the like—have been set up and are beginning to function. Movement toward check of inflation is under way.

Yet Mr. Truman's words "this must not happen," would convey the spirit of firm determination more surely if he had not said the equivalent of them before, at various times. During the early months of his Administration, and also during the Roosevelt one, the spirit of determination was conveyed by a slogan which had almost an official status: "Hold the line against inflation."

But along with that slogan Mr. Truman had a policy. In several formal statements during late 1945 he urged raises of wage rates in industry. The urgings were accompanied by an admonition that the wage raises be "non-inflationary," meaning that they should not be accompanied by increases in prices of goods. This policy of Mr. Truman's was put on the basis of an economic theory, the purpose put forward was to increase the country's purchasing power by increasing wage rates for labor.

The policy prevailed over the slogan. In January, 1946, the Administration, in order to end a strike, brought about a raise in the wage rates of labor in the steel industry, and simultaneously announced an increase of five dollars a ton in the price of steel. With that double action the slogan "Hold the line against inflation" evaporated. There ensued a twin parade of wage raises and price increases which has been a spiral mechanism of inflation which has gone on to this day and which has had especially strong momentum the past few months. This wage-price spiral, coupled with price support of farm crops, composed most of the dynamic mechanism of inflation.

In the part of Mr. Truman's economic message dealing with inflation he included four of its effects which are especially deadly. He said that if inflation continues it would "destroy confidence . . . impair the value of the dollar, dissipate the value of savings, and impose an intolerable burden upon fixed income groups." These effects of inflation bear with especial hardship on one immense class of the people.

In what may be looked upon as the grand divisions of the American economy and society, an immense one and perhaps the most vitally important, is the savers. These include holders of the familiar government savings bonds, holders of life insurance policies or beneficiaries of them, depositors in savings banks, groups who have savings in pension funds, other groups who have various kinds of fixed income securities.

In the act of saving the purpose of these groups is to provide for their future. They save in order that when they are old or retired they shall be able to live upon their savings. This purpose is realized only if the dollars they have put into savings retain approximately the purchasing power they had at the time of saving them; if they buy, ten or twenty years hence, as much goods as they bought when saved.

This expectation and reliance is being threatened or defeated. Persons who have put their saved dollars into savings banks, life insurance, savings bonds or the like, find that their saved dollars, when they come back, have lost a material percentage of their purchasing power. A dollar which, when saved ten years ago, was the equivalent of say three pounds of steak, will today buy hardly one pound, and so as to other forms of food and goods.

The effect of inflation and depreciation of the purchasing power of the dollar upon savers, who in many cases are old or retired, is more cruel than upon other groups. Labor, by reason of organization, is able to gallop along with inflation; to keep up with it by repeated raises in wage rates. Farmers are able to keep up with it by reason of government price support of farm crops. Further than human consideration, savers deserve consideration for their value to the country. If inflation should go to a point at which savers begin to wonder whether saving is worth while, the effect on the country and its economy would be serious.

Relations Of Congress, President Are Improving

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. — Relations between Congress and President Truman are getting better. There's a rift in the clouds and a bit of amicability is beginning to appear.

Apparently President Truman did not mean to be brusque with Congress last week when he said, in effect, he would consult Congress but would do as he pleased about sending troops abroad. He told the reporters that maybe they didn't write the story the way he meant it. They, of course, wrote what they heard him say. Mr. Truman thinks the implications of his words were perhaps misconstrued or ignored.

These misunderstandings will occur. Mr. Truman is really not complaining that the reporting was unsound but that at times things don't sound in print like they sound when he says them. Maybe they ought to have a system of sound effects to cure this so that the exact intonation of voice could be recorded. Maybe the whole press conference should be put on radio and television so that the public —whose business is being discussed —can judge for itself what the inflections of a presidential voice really mean.

As for Congress, there are signs that Senator Taft is softening or clarifying his position, too. He wouldn't object to sending troops to Europe, he says, but wants Congress to spell out some sort of ratio so that America will supply certain divisions and the other nations some divisions in proper proportion.

Anyway, there seems to be a convergence toward agreement. So far as foreign governments are concerned, they can properly derive from these modifications, clarifications, and explanations that the executive and legislative branches of the American government are beginning to see eye to eye on the major things—they are agreed on what the diplomats call the "principle," and there are just some slight details of difference on how the principle shall be applied.

Basically there never was any doubt that, if the President asked Congress for authority to station our troops in Europe as a part of our North Atlantic treaty obligation, he would get such authority by overwhelming vote. The legalists who told him a bad precedent would be created if he asked for such authority were giving Mr. Truman poor advice. The President of the United States can always act of his own initiative in sending troops out of the country if there is danger. He does not need to wait for congressional action. But where there is time, the words of the Constitution would seem to imply that he ask for congressional authority soon after he sends the troops abroad, if not before.

It may be stated also that a declaration which recognizes a state of war with Communist China, if submitted to Congress now, would pass by an overwhelming vote of both houses. Congressional sentiment is almost unanimous on the rejection of the phony "peace" proposal made by the Chinese Communists, and there is complete backing for the Department of State in its efforts to obtain the adoption at the United Nations of a resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor.

Under the American system of free discussion, world policies are praised or criticized, or proposals for amendment are made publicly. Thus every official of the Department of State knows what Congress is thinking about and, if not, members of the congressional committees are free to come in and talk about it or write in or telephone.

What is needed here mostly is to encourage a spirit of cooperation—to instill the feeling at the Department of State that members of Congress have a responsibility to their constituents and also to instill on Capitol Hill the feeling that the Department of State will welcome advice. Having established the right kind of relationship between the two branches of government, it then becomes essential for Congress to recognize that under the Constitution the conduct of foreign relations is an executive function and that the President and Secretary of State must make the final decisions and be held accountable for them to the country.

As one looks back on the somewhat clumsy performances of the last few days, one wonders how much it is all due to the deep-seated partisanship of the President himself, which distrusts the opposition party, and conversely to the distrust which the opposition party has with respect to Mr. Truman and his Secretary of State.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

What Is War?

BUSHROD WASHINGTON, a nephew of our first president and an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, in Bas V. Tingy, defined war as follows:

"It may, I believe, be safely laid down, that every contention by force, between two nations, in external matters, under the authority of their respective governments, is not only war, but public war."

Professor John Bassett Moore, the greatest American authority on international law, said:

"Much confusion may be avoided by bearing in mind the fact that by the term war is meant not the mere employment of force, but the existence of the legal condition of things in which rights are or may be prosecuted by force. . ."

Bynkershoek, commenting on Grotius, said:

"War is a contest between independent parties by way of force or deceit, for the purpose of pursuing their right."

The term "right" here must be interpreted as will, desire, ambition, or perhaps what a side believes either to be correct or its rights.

In the case of the "resolution," the Federal Court of Appeals held:

"A perfect war is that which destroys the national peace and tranquillity, and lays the foundation of every possible act of hostility; the imperfect war is that which does not entirely destroy the public tranquillity, but interrupts it only in some particulars, as in the case of reprisals."

Instead of "perfect" and "imperfect war," the terms "general" and "limited" war have often been used. Our present war with Soviet China is a limited war; it is for this reason that General MacArthur was forbidden to bomb the Yalu River reservoirs. Our war with Soviet Russia, commencing in 1945, has been called a 'cold war" because it was a war limited to deceits rather than involving force.

These various definitions of war are here given because of the very great confusion which exists in many minds as to whether this country is now at war. It is often suggested that our troops are in Korea on a police action ordered by the United Nations. That might have been true up to November 6, when the presence of Soviet China in the war was acknowledged.

Soviet China and Soviet Russia have regarded the United States as the aggressor in the Korean war; whereas the United States has regarded Soviet China as the aggressor and desires that the United Nations so declare it.

Karl Von Clausewitz, the philosopher of war, defines war as follows:

". . . War is nothing but a duel on a larger scale. If we would combine into one conception the countless separate duels of which it consists, we would do well to think of two wrestlers. Each tries by physical force to compel the other to do his will; his immediate object is to overthrow his adversary and thereby make him incapable of any further resistance."

The important word in all this is "will." War exists to break the will of a nation; to subdue it; to destroy it; to bring it to heel.

Clausewitz further says:

". . .Force, that is to say, physical force . . . Is thus the means; to impose our will upon the enemy is the object. To achieve this object with certainty we must disarm the enemy, and this disarming is by definition the proper aim of military action. . ."

It is possible to disarm a nation by strikes, mutinies, subsidizing civil war. It is also possible to achieve this end by infiltration in government, by espionage, by the spread of false rumors, slogans and ideas, by weakening resistance through the propagation of great lies. All these have been employed with a measure of success.

Perhaps one of the most effective non-military weapons is confusing of the issue by extraneous matters. For instance, in the present stage of our war with Soviet China, the fear of Great Britain and France is that this is a Russian stratagem to divert our resources from Europe. Therefore, they minimize the nature of our Asiatic problems in order to emphasize the importance of their European problems. This has caused division in our country.

War itself ignores all these factors, for it moves along killing people and establishing constantly new situations. Withdrawal means defeat immediately; continuance may mean defeat or victory eventually. Therefore, when a nation is engaged in war, its decisions, uncertainties and imponderables are often confusing, particularly when a government, to hide error, fails to be truthful.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19.—(INS)—Romance, Darryl Zanuck believes, pays off in dollars and cents at the box office providing the motion picture has color, is creditable and, of course, has good acting.

That's why, he tells me, he is again teaming Debra Paget and Louis Jourdan in "Annie Of The Indies," a romantic story about a lady pirate. Debra and Louis were together in "Bird Of Paradise" which is really romance with a capital R. Now, Debra, whom I chose as the most promising young actress, will be starred with Jourdan who gets a really lusty pirate role.

Louis Jourdan

Here's a tip to Silvano Mangano, Italian star of "Bitter Rice," who wants to work for Zanuck. If she'll make a test and it meets with the approval of Director Jacques Tourneur and George Jessel, the producer, she might get herself a job with Debra and Louis.

• — • — •

When I was in Chicago a week ago, I drove past the old Essanay Studios on Argyle Street. It is now being rented to an independent producer.

I telephoned George K. Spoor, former head of Essanay, who still lives on Argyle Street, and he told me that Gloria Swanson always telephones him when she comes through Chicago.

What memories that old street brought back. The house where Wallace Beery once lived, close to the studio; the apartment which housed Francis X. Bushman, his wife, and five children.

Mr. Spoor, now close to 80 years old, asked me why I didn't go into the studio. Somehow, I couldn't do it. It didn't seem like the place where I worked so many years ago.

Hugo Haas, who made "Pick Up" at a cost of $85,000 and just finished "The Bridge" at a cost of $90,000, is already considering his next movie.

This time he'll do a comedy, "The Man Next Door." Haas, who always stars in his own pictures, has cast only himself thus far. Beverly Nichols, blonde beauty, has been in his other two pictures which are heavily dramatic, but she may not be in "The Man Next Door," which is not exactly her cup of tea.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Darryl Zanuck will be a grandpop any edition. His daughter, Darrylin, and her young husband, Robert Jacks, are awaiting the blessed event. Neither Virginia nor Darryl will go to New York for the film critic's ward until after the arrival of the baby.

Garwood Van flew in from Palm Springs where he is playing at the Chi-Chi to see Marie Wilson. Apparently Gar isn't going to let Allan Nixon take up too much of Marie's time.

Ruth Roman and her bridegroom, Mortimer Hall, leave for New York to meet his family and then go on to the Bahamas for a belated honeymoon. That is they'll go as soon as Ruth completes her current picture at Warners.

Well, listen to this—my flower-eating friend, Piper Laurie, was at the Cafe Gala with Vic Damone having a time. Well, why not? Both of them are free and 21.

Errol Flynn must receive daily treatment for two months and stay in bed during that time for at least a half day. So this will cancel his plans to make an independent movie in Ireland.

There are two schools of thought. One side is betting that Arlene Dahl and Lex Barker will never marry, and the other is betting they'll marry sooner than they'll admit. Take your choice—I'm neutral.

Mrs. Joe Mankiewicz, whose stage name is Rose Stradna, will return to the New York stage in the fall.

That's all today. See you Monday.

The ground hog, or woodchuck, which traditionally wakes from winter sleep and emerges from its burrow on February 2 to forecast an early or late spring, is a species of marmot, the National Geographic Society says. It is common in the eastern United States and Canada from sea level to near the tops of the highest mountains.

Has the winter taken its toll of your complexion? Use this special facial to restore your beauty!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

I WANT to tell you about a very special facial that will give you a June-in-January complexion in very short order!

You are a mighty unusual person, even though you usually have an ever-so-smooth and young-looking complexion, if at this time of year your face doesn't become dry, rough and irritated. Incipient lines and crow's feet suddenly appear in an alarming way.

These distressing changes in the facial skin are simply the result of mid-winter dehydration. They can be easily counteracted, if you will just give yourself this special facial twice each week until your skin returns to normal.

First, assemble all the necessary equipment: Turkish towel, hot water, a lubricating oil, pan, ordinary table salt, cup, a light skin freshener, an inch-thick pad of absorbant cotton (large enough to cover your entire face and neck) and a bowl of ice cubes.

Put the container of oil with cap on into a pan of very hot water, so that it will be warm when you are ready to use it. Place the cotton in the bottom of your bowl and cover it with the ice cubes and five tablespoons of the skin freshener.

Now cleanse your face with your favorite cleanser, being extra careful not to cause the slightest irritation. Then press the turkish towel, wrung out in hot water, to your face and neck until your facial muscles are thoroughly relaxed.

Follow this with a generous application of your lubricating oil. When every inch of your skin is covered, briskly spank (don't pull) your skin for two minutes or until it glows. Remove the excess oil with tissue.

Now, put half a teaspoon of salt into a cup and add one-quarter of a cup of the lubricating oil. Smooth

"I Now Get Amazing Relief from Monthly Female Pains and nervous feelings several days before... by taking Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound"

"Believe me, it's no picnic to suffer distress from female functional monthly ailments such as headaches, backache and 'bearing-down' pains—at such times. What really got my goat was I'd feel so nervous, irritable and restless several days just before my period.
"A nurse who is a friend of mine suggested I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. And what an amazing medicine Lydia Pinkham's Compound is! It not only relieves this painful distress for me but also accompanying nervous tension and tired, weak feelings—of this nature. I take Pinkham's Compound every day now, because I find that this helps build up resistance against such female distress. It tastes swell in a little fruit juice! I do hope any girl or woman who suffers this way will give Pinkham's Compound a trial."

Three field goals by Billy Robertson after two free throws by Tommy Kelly had tied the score at 47-47, enabled Central High School to upset Allegany High School in a W.M.I. League contest last night on the Lonaconing court before a packed house. The score was 54-51.

The setback knocked Allegany out of the undefeated class in the county circuit and Fort Hill took over sole possession of first place by bagging its third straight win over Beall High at Frostburg, 68-53. Undefeated Fort Hill has won nine contests this season.

In the third league game of the night, Barton High defeated Bruce of Westernport in Barton by the score of 43 to 38.

At Lonaconing, Central led AHS by 14 points at intermission, 36-32. Then the Campers outscored the Tigers 26 to 4 in the third stanza to forge ahead at 48-40. Central outpointed AHS 14 to 3 in the final quarter to sew up the game.

Junior Eversole was the game's high scorer with 20 points. Kenny Burt headed CHS with 17 points. McKenzie and Johnson played stellar floor games for the Orange and Black. Long of Allegany was ejected on personal fouls in the 4th period.

Four Players Ejected

Four players were banished in the Fort Hill-Beall contest in the Mountain City. Workman and Arnone of Beall were ejected as well as Landis and Wilson of Fort Hill.

Fort Hill meshed 24 of 55 shots from the field while Beall sank 20 of 50. Lynn Beightol was Fort Hill's top scorer with 16 points while Cage, McGregor and Wilson had 14, 13 and 12, respectively. Arnone and Blank with 13 and 12 paced Beall.

Fort Hill's Jaycees defeated Beall in the prelim, 28-22.

Stage Rousing Finish

Bruce put on a whirlwind finish but was unable to catch Coach Johnny Thomas's Barton Braves in the final quarter at Barton.

Barton held a 19 point lead going into the last period (39-20) and was outscored 18 to 4 in the last eight minutes but finished five points in the fore at the final whistle.

Bill Kirk and Tim Clark were Barton's best bets. Reeves and Berry were outstanding for Bruce.

Bert Bell Gets Salary Increase From Grid Loop

Commissioner's Pay Hiked To $40,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—The National Football League today handed Commissioner Bert Bell a $10,000 yearly raise, making his annual salary $40,000 for the remainder of his eight year term.

The "vote of confidence" was given Bell by the club owners after they finished the annual player draft in which the champion Cleveland Browns lead the drawing of 362 collegians with 36 picks.

Bell's salary increase was announced by owner George Preston Marshall of the Washington Redskins. The pro grid chiefs' $40,000 salary leaves him $25,000 below the $65,000 Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler receives. However, the major baseball leagues have refused to renew Chandler's contract which ends May, 1952.

The move apparently was an attempt to "show up" organized baseball. Marshall had sharply criticized the refusal of baseball owners to renew Chandler's contract at their recent winter meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The pro football bosses, after completing the player draft and voting Bell's raise, tackled such other problems as possible realignment of the loop's American and National divisions, and drawing up a 1951 playing schedule.

STADIUM INN'S 1st HALF CHAMPIONS—Stadium Inn of Frostburg captured the first half championship of the Men's National Shuffleboard League of Allegany County on Thursday night by winning three games from the Cumberland Knights of Columbus, defending champions. The Frostburg team finished six games out in front with a 32-7 record. Frostburg American Legion and Cumberland K. of C. tied for runner-up honors. The 2nd half race gets under way next Thursday. Members of the Stadium Inn team pictured above, left to right, are: Max Stangle, Bill Day, Tom Stewart, Dewey Porter, Charles Rice, Charles Minnicks, Tom Gracie and Earl Minnicks.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Guidebook For Dialogue Writers

AFTER examining the drama again—Broadway, movies, radio, television—I've decided to issue the Crosby Pocket Handbook which will come out from time to time and will settle barroom arguments among dialogue writers.

John Crosby

You get a couple dialogue writers they're discussing a scene where the girl realizes she's got cancer her husband is saying "Joanna, you look like a ghost. What . . .?" The correct line for her, of course, "I'm tired — just tired — that's all." That's now official. Any deviation, like deviations from any ceremony, will be considered blasphemous and the penalty therefore will be court-martial or, at the very least, the tab on the next drink.

• — • — •

Dialogue-writing has become a matter as ceremonious as Japanese drama and we had better codify these things so that everyone knows what to expect in given situations. Following are the proper lines for given situations. I've omitted some of the situations since we all know them well:

"Doctor, you've got to pull her through. You've got to. She's all I have."

"Son—. . . you'd better get some rest."

Then there's that tense moment in the detective drama. Here, depending on circumstances and the way the plot is shaping up, there are two opposite ways of handling the problem:

a) "Tell him, Joe! Tell him! If you won't say where you were at the hours of the murder, I will!"

"Maisie, you don't know what you're saying!"

"Inspector—Joe was with me. In my—boudoir."

Or there's the other side of the coin.

"I was with you all evening! You know I was, Maisie! I was with you. Go on! Tell 'em!"

"I never saw this man before in my life."

The scene where the girl is lost, heartbroken and broke in the bus station and Cary Grant happens through and helps her out: "Why are you—a stranger—doing all this for me?"

• — • — •

The problems of maternity, paternity and what might be described as the You - Were - Almost - My - Daughter gambit have to be treated fairly extensively.

"Jennifer, twenty years ago I loved a woman. She never knew. I never told her. Because—well, that woman was your mother. And it was your father that she loved. So I went away—it doesn't matter where. But tonight she lives again—in all her loveliness—in you, my child. And that is why—but this is a night for youth and gaiety and love. Back to the ball with you both! I will join you—later—later—later."

The absent or deceased parent gambit:

a) "How proud your mother would have been to see you in her graduation dress."

b) "Bill, you can't quit! You've got to keep fighting this thing. Mother would have wanted it that way."

c) "And that man was—your father."

Bereavement or imminent bereavement? Well, naturally, we have to cover that.

"Oh, God, I'm just a little boy seven years old and maybe I've been bad but, God, don't let my dog Rover die. I'll be a good boy, God. Thank you, God. Goodbye, God. Amen."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

ODDS OF 10 TO 1 CRAZY

NO HORSE-PLAYER would think of offering 10 to 1 odds on a nag which figured to have only about an even chance to win a race. Yet those crazy odds are offered every once in a while at the bridge table. One frequent situation where you see that done is the double of an opposing contract by someone who expects to beat it about a trick, whereas the making of the contract would give the opponent a game if it was doubled but not if it was not doubled.

	♠ J 8 7 4 2 ♥ 10 6 3 ♦ 5 ♣ Q J 10 9
♠ 10 6 3 ♥ A 9 8 7 2 ♦ K Q J 6 4 ♣ None	N W E S	♠ A K Q 9 5 ♥ J 4 ♦ 10 9 ♣ K 7 4 3
	♠ None ♥ K Q 5 ♦ A 8 7 3 2 ♣ A 8 6 5 2

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
Dbl	Pass	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	Pass	Dbl

Setting that contract one trick would have given East and West 50 points if it was not doubled, 100 if it was doubled. Thus, the double increased the chance of gain by exactly 50 points, if a one-trick set was in view.

Against the 50 points chance for gain, the chance for loss was terrific. It would include the value of a game, roughly 300 points or so, plus the doubled value of the tricks, which would be increased by 60, plus the 50 points for making a doubled contract, plus the danger of another 100 points if an extra trick was made.

As it turned out, all of that happened. South made an extra trick, so that his gain from the double was roughly 490 points, whereas his loss if beaten a trick would have been increased only 50 by the double. That is just about 10 to 1 odds.

In the play, South lost only three tricks following the spade 10 lead. East got one by overruffing the club 10 with the K on a diamond lead, a second trick went to the heart A and the third was a diamond trick after the dummy's trumps were gone.

Your Weekend Question

Can you recall any case in which a player holding a singly-guarded king should refuse to use it when an opponent finesses the queen from ace-queen to him? If you can't recall such a case, can you construct a hand on which that play would be sound?

Gather up your dripping, icy cotton and, learning over the basin, press it to your face and neck until your skin fairly tingles with new and firmer life. Press the excess water out of your cotton, lie down, and cover your face with the cotton for ten minutes.

When you get up, what a pleasant surprise your mirror will have for you!

Moderate Whiff Of Selling Blows Market Prices Down

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP) — A moderate whiff of selling today in the stock market was enough to blow prices down.

In the final phases of trading the best portion of early gains faded away and left the list sagging.

Losses ran to more than a dollar a share at the close, and a minority of gains at best came to better than a dollar a share.

The day started with a certain amount of firmness in prices, but this soon gave way to a general easing.

Then there developed a sort of rolling advance with attention shifting rapidly from one group to another.

Air lines started it off, helped along no doubt by reports that traffic so far this year is highly satisfactory.

The rails took it up from there but were unable to make much progress. Nickel Plate ran up better than six points at one time and closed up 5 at 202½, back again over the magic double century mark.

Automobiles took the spotlight with Chrysler the best performer pricewise, up 1⅛ at 75⅜, although Packard was second most active up ⅜ at 5.

Steels made a brief show but ended unchanged to fractions higher.

Among the last to come into the act were the motion pictures.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 10 cents to $92.80. The industrial component was off 40 cents while rails and utilities were unchanged.

Volume came to 3,160,000 shares as compared with yesterday's bulging 3,490,000 shares.

Bank Balance For County Continues At A High Level

The county treasurer's report for the last three months of 1950 presented to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday morning showed that the county's bank balance continues at a high level.

The report, prepared by Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, auditor, shows that the county had $1,298,092.36 in the bank as of December 31.

The cash balance on September 30 was $1,847,140.46. The drop is attributed to the maintaining of the regular schedule of disbursements.

Receipts for the last quarter of 1950 were $2,446,737.64 while disbursements were $1,148,645.28.

The county also has $139,062.55 in taxes outstanding. The major items in this category are $74,154.59 in taxes from District 1, W. A. Strother, tax collector, for 1950; $20,298.94 for District 2 at Frostburg in 1950 taxes, and $19,132.37 for District 1 taxes outstanding from 1949.

The major receipts during the quarter were: $300,000, from U. S. Treasury notes, redeemed; $53,361.51 from the state horse racing revenue; $52,470.80, state motor vehicle and gasoline tax; $75,868.40, Strother, for 1950 taxes.

The major disbursements during the quarter were $400,000, money from the 1948 school bond issue turned over to the Board of Education for Mt. Savage School work; $254,250.20 to schools; $116,000, retirement of bonded indebtedness; public welfare, $64,736.64.

Medical Care Given 4,368 Persons In Allegany County

Members of the Medical Care Committee for Allegany County met with Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, to review the program and to hear a report on the cost and total number of persons receiving aid.

The session, held at the Health Department office in the Public Safety Building Thursday revealed that 4,368 persons received medical care during July 1, 1950 to December 1, 1950. A person receiving treatment more than once is counted each time.

The number of persons on the rolls during the past six months has averaged between 800 and 900, a big drop from the total during April, May and June of last year.

Total expenditure for the year ending July 1, 1950 was $85,020.32 in Allegany County, with $26,606.91 of the amount being for drugs and other medicines.

From July 1, 1950 to November 1, 1950 the cost was $26,211.61 with pharmacy bills totaling $11,196.54. Dr. Frantz explained that the actual bills submitted by doctors in the county totaled about $4,000 more than that paid out. He said that the state set a certain sum which they would receive and that funds for this purpose would not cover the bills submitted. In other words, the doctors of this county gave $4,000 worth of service at no cost to the county or state, he pointed out.

During the year ending July 1, 1950 there were 10,674 persons who received aid under the program in this county.

Use Of Diesels To Be Increased In This Area

Work On New Shops Nears Completion

Use of diesel power will be maintained by the B. and O. Railroad on runs from Cumberland to Grafton and Parkersburg and return, C. T. Williams, superintendent of the local B. and O. yard said yesterday.

Williams said the shop facilities to care for and refuel diesel engines are now under construction and should be completed by February 15.

This is in line with an announcement made by a company official in Fairmont, W. Va., that use of diesel power on all through and fast freight trains in and out of Fairmont on the B. and O. is anticipated in the immediate future.

He added that possibly within the next few weeks all movement of such freight traffic from Fairmont to Keyser, Grafton to Keyser and on a sub-division to Parkersburg would be by diesel.

The same thing, the official said, soon will apply on the Fairmont-Benwood runs via Brooklyn Junction. Practically all freight from Fairmont on the Pittsburgh division to and from Connellsville, Pa., now is diesel-moved.

Twelve diesel units soon will be available for the Fairmont-Benwood run, and 56 for the Fairmont-Keyser, Grafton-Keyser and Grafton-Parkersburg trips, it was explained.

TWUA Asks Cost Of Living Boost In Rayon Field

A request for a voluntary reopening of contracts to provide cost-of-living wage adjustments has been forwarded to the rayon and synthetic yarn manufacturing industry by the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), it was announced in New York yesterday by Herbert W. Payne, the union's synthetic yarn director.

Payne said TWUA's proposal, on behalf of approximately 38,000 workers under union contract is intended to protect workers against increases in the cost of living which have already taken place, and those predicted for the future.

The union proposes, Payne said, that contracts be amended to provide quarterly wage adjustments "plus or minus one cent an hour for each 1.14 points change in the consumers price index of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics." Such adjustments would start with a "lump-sum" settlement at the time of conclusion of negotiations, based on the rise in the index since July 15, 1950.

Payne said TWUA recognizes that the present contract does not permit a reopening at this time but "economic conditions have changed so sharply that the union no longer can remain quiet while its members suffer constant and growing reductions in their living standards in a period when the industry is prospering as never before."

He pointed to figures published by three leading firms in the industry which show that while sales have risen almost 50 per cent, profits before taxes, have increased 186 per cent for the third quarter of 1950 over the same quarter in 1949. At the same time, workers' productivity has risen steadily, he said.

Two Cases Tried In Circuit Court

Two appeal cases were tried yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court with Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris presiding.

John A. Snyder was found guilty by a jury of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and fined $150 and costs by Judge Harris. Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti had fined Snyder $100 plus costs in Trial Magistrate's Court.

In a second case, sentence was deferred and the defendant was remanded to County Jail after Judge Harris found Martin McKenzie guilty on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge. McKenzie had appealed a sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction given him by Magistrate James P. Kenney of Frostburg.

Smoke Control Program Termed Health Crusade

Hitchcock Reports On Progress Here

Smoke abatement is part of a crusade for health and the cost of the program will be repaid in better health of the community, George B. Hitchock, smoke abatement engineer for the City of Cumberland, declared yesterday.

His report on the success of the program here was presented at a luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in Central YMCA.

Smoke violations, which averaged 7.29 each 100 observations during 1949, dropped to .42 per hundred last year, Hitchcock said. The record betters that made in Columbus, Ohio, which had 7.25 in 1949 and one per 100 last year.

The virtually complete dieselization of the Cumberland yards, which will be finished this spring, will further decrease smoke violations and cause a marked drop in dustfall, he stated.

So far, Hitchcock said, the program has centered on the railroads and large industrial plants. The 1951 schedule calls for spreading the program to smaller industries here.

The 1,338 observations on the B. and O. here in 1949 disclosed 748 partial observations and 22 bad. Last year, with 3,122 observations, only 382 partial and 13 bad violations were noted. Full cooperation of railroad officials at terminal meetings, he added, has proved highly successful.

Dustfall in Cumberland in 1949 averaged 28.46 tons per square mile with the 1950 average up to 31.24.

Hitchcock said the yard dieselization program will drop the average back to below the 1949 figure, which reflected a lower employment factor in the city. He attributed part of the high dustfall to last February, when large quantities of poor coal were used due to a coal shortage.

Cumberland is about in the middle bracket among the some 200 cities which have smoke abatement programs.

He said that in 1949, Pittsburgh's dustfall averaged 51.5 tons; Chicago, 33.94; Cumberland, 28.46; Cincinnati 27.84, and Milwaukee, 36.8.

Some improvement is needed, he reported, but much progress has been made.

There is a growing body of data, Hitchcock said, to prove the connection between air pollution and cancer in Cumberland, and work on the study is being continued.

Collects Samples Of Sewage

J. B. Dowling, state health department sanitarian, is seen collecting for analysis a sample of raw sewage draining upon McMullen Highway near Fairgo. He said the State Roads Commission and the Health Department have inaugurated an intensive drive to improve health conditions along the some 150 miles of primary roads in this county. Dowling said the unwholesome condition generally results from the inadequacy of septic tanks.

Rubber Output Is Slashed By Government

Reduction Order May Effect Local Plant

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The government tonight slashed about 7,650 tons off the amount of synthetic rubber that will be available to make tires and other products for civilians this month.

Officials said the cut probably will mean that many manufacturers of rubber products will have to work fewer days than they had planned during January.

The National Production Authority announced that civilian allocations of general purpose synthetic rubber, known as GRS, are being cut 17 per cent in January.

Such allocations had been expected previously to total about 45,000 tons for the month.

The affected type of synthetic rubber is a substitute for crude rubber and is used in making tires, belting, hose and many other products.

Tire manufacturers are required to use a fixed percentage of such rubber in order to conserve the supply of natural rubber for defense purposes.

In passenger car tires, a fixed percentage is required for different types of tires. The NPA said that synthetic production for January is falling below expectations because of mechanical difficulties and bad weather encountered during the reopening of government-owned synthetic rubber plants.

The NPA said no early shortage of tires is expected to result from the synthetic cut. Tire production recently had been high, officials explained.

Edmund S. Burke, president of the local Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, said last night the plant would make no changes in its present four-day working week until the directive has been received here by company officials.

"It probably will have some effect on us," he stated.

The spokesmen said many active reservists not in organized units also will get orders under the call-up announced in Washington Thursday.

State Agencies Seek Check On Open Sewage Conditions

Highways Polluted From Septic Tanks

The stepping up of a State Roads Commission and Health Department program to curb the dumping of sewage upon highways of Allegany County was announced yesterday by J. B. Dowling, state health department sanitarian.

Results of a survey this week of all primary roads by Dowling and George B. Hale, resident maintanance engineer for the SRC, showed widespread violations of laws regarding health conditions on the highways.

In many cases, Dowling said, raw sewage was found running down the bank and upon the highways like hillside springs.

Hale said the maintenance problem caused when such sewage pours upon the roads and freezes is costly from a monetary standpoint, to say nothing of the health hazard.

In cold weather, SRC officials said, the sewage freezes and creates dangerous icy spots which must be cindered. After the weather warms, the excretia dries up and is blown everywhere to become a serious health hazard.

Dowling said parts of McMullen Highway are the worst offenders, but said conditions existing along the road at Fairgo must be multiplied a hundredfold to get a true picture.

The Health Department is now investigating between 20 and 25 complaints of sewage conditions, Dowling said.

The situation will be corrected, Dowling said, as adequate septic tanks are provided.

Mercury Zooms To High 60s

With temperatures zooming in the high 60s yesterday, Cumberlanders were carrying their coats and wondering how long the spring-like weather would continue.

Their answer came from the Weather Bureau which forcasts similar temperatures and mild weather for today. The highest temperature in Constitution Park yesterday was 66 degrees, which is not a record for the month of January—79 degrees having been recorded on January 25 last year.

In Baltimore, a temperature of 68 degrees was said to be the highest temperature ever recorded on a January 19. The previous record, one degree lower, was set on January 19, 1929.

Col. Shreve To Inspect Reserve Corps Armory

Approximately 250 area reservists are expected to attend the open house and dedicatory service for the opening of the new Second Army Organized Reserve Corps armory on the third floor of the Footer building, corner of Howard and South Mechanic Streets, Tuesday.

Col. Arthur L. Shreve, chief of the Maryland Military district, will inspect the new armory Tuesday and will speak at the luncheon-meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club at Central YMCA. Col. Shreve originally planned to attend the dinner for the dedication at 6 p. m. at Ali Ghan Shrine Club and later speak at a meeting of the six area reserve units here at 8 p. m. in the new armory but will be unable to remain here due to other military commitments. Col. Donald McGrayne, senior army instructor of the Maryland Military District, will be guest speaker at the affair.

Col. Shreve, a native of Baltimore, attended Gilman County School and Baltimore Polytechnic prior to entering the service with the 110th Field Artillery at the outbreak of World War I. He later served as a combat pilot in France and was appointed second lieutenant in the regular army in September, 1920.

Epilepsy Clinic To Be Started Here Next Week

Health Department To Sponsor Service

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county and city health officer, announced yesterday that an Epilepsy clinic will be opened in Allegany County next Wednesday.

Dr. Samuel Livingston, of the staff of the Seizure clinic of Harriet Lane Home, Johns Hopkins Hospital, will be in charge of the clinic to be held in the basement of City Hall January 24 from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.

The clinic will be by appointment only and Dr. Frantz said all appointments for the first clinic are already filled.

The Epilepsy clinic is part of a statewide program sponsored by the State Department of Health.

In general, Johns Hopkins is taking care of clinics in the western sections of the state, with specialists from the University of Maryland covering the eastern areas.

All patients for the clinic must be referred by private physicians.

Initial examinations will be made at Johns Hopkins Hospital, officials said, where complete facilities are available for complete tests, including an electro encephalogram, if necessary.

Follow up treatment will be done in the clinics, which will be held here once each two months.

Minister Asks Aid In Handling Funeral Corteges

Rev B. F. Hartman, pastor of Cumberland Methodist circuit, announced yesterday he will confer with the Cumberland Ministerial Association in an effort to expedite the handling of funeral processions in this city.

On a number of occasions, Rev. Mr. Hartman said, cars have entered the line of funeral corteges when a police escort was not leading the procession.

The minister explained the situation at a conference with Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn this week.

Chief Flynn said police furnish escorts when funeral homes request the service.

He added, however, that it is sometimes impossible to provide an escort when several funerals are scheduled at the same hour.

Police pointed out that a city ordinance requires that each car of a funeral cortege be clearly marked and that vehicles must burn their lights as a further means of letting other motorists know the nature of the cavalcade.

Investigation of the incidents disclosed that funeral directors had failed to ask for escorts, police said.

He said one of the boys admitted using a meat cleaver to break open a chest in which the articles were locked.

Grace Baptist Church Construction Gets Underway

This picture shows a power shovel at work excavating for the new Grace Baptist Church, which will be constructed on Greene Street at South Spruce Street. Ground-breaking ceremonies were held by the church officials December 30. Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, Jr., church pastor, hopes that the edifice will be completed by May. It will include a 30 by 50 foot sanctuary and a 30 by 30 foot Sunday School room. This building will be placed on the lot so that a larger structure may be added as part of a 10-year program. The congregation now uses a former residence in the 400 block North Mechanic Street.
